COLUMBUS — The state administration jumped out of the frying pan into the fire today as Joseph T. Ferguson, state auditor, prepared to take up where the senate investigating committee left off.

After working all night Monday, minions of Governor Davey watched a jittery house kill any attempt to prolong the special session and thus grant additional time to the investigators, only to see their work ruined by the entrance of the state auditor into the controversy.

Break Looms In Case of Missing Boy

Developments Sensed as G-Men Arrive at Levine Home.

(By International News Service)

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.— Tempo of the search for 12 year old Peter Levine quickened today and although all official sources were silent, it appeared either that there had been a break in the case or that one was soon expected.

It could be sensed in the business-like early arrival of G-men at the Levine house, the promptness with which the door was opened for them and the sudden half-scream, half-sob of a woman as the door closed.

Not Seen Since Thursday.

Young Peter has not been seen since Thursday afternoon when he left a chum at the school yard to "go to a store across the street."

Murray Levine, Manhattan lawyer and father of the missing boy, believes that he was kidnaped. Chums of the boy and family friends say that he was interested in "G-Man Stuff" and a constant reader of detective stories.

To bolster the kidnap theory there was reported to be a ransom note, written on a toy typewriter and left under a stone in a vacant lot near the Levine home. But there was some doubt as to the amount asked in the note. It was typed $60000 and whether $600.00 or $60,000 was intended was, of course, unknown.

Lights burned in the Levine home all last night as they have since Thursday night when young Peter failed to return home for supper.

Watchers early today saw a big black car pull into the driveway after circling the block three times. Its occupants hurried to the door which opened almost instantly and were admitted. They were presumed to be all G-men for the car registration indicated that it was owned by Leon Tarrou, a G-man.

Meanwhile, New Rochelle police who had been asked by Levine to stay out of the case until the supposed kidnaper had opportunity to contact him, prepared to join in the investigation, for Levine also had asked the G-men to stay out and they obviously were very much in.

NURSES STRIKE

Seven at Urbana Ask Ouster of Supervisor, Assistant.

URBANA—(U.P.)—Seven striking nurses of the Champaign county hospital were to present their grievances to the county medical board today and to demand dismissal of Miss Ruth Clyburn, hospital supervisor, and Miss Lora Moore, her assistant.

The nurses, who walked out Monday, told county commissioners they had been discriminated against in assignment of nurses to private cases with good pay, and that they had received "unjust and unfair" treatment. They asked enrollment of more student nurses, better training methods, a wage increase above $50 monthly, and protested against being "on call" at all hours.

Miss Clyburn said she did not know what prompted the walkout.

Young Mansfielders Aboard Missing Airliner

A frantic search which began with the dawn continued this afternoon for a missing TWA airliner which carried two Mansfield college students. Tracy Dirlam, 21, and his sister, Mary Lou Dirlam, 19, were aboard the plane which is believed to have crashed early this morning in the rugged mountain country of Southern California. They were flying to Mansfield to be at the bedside of their father, Jay Dirlam, prominent in Mansfield financial circles, who is seriously ill at his home in Woodland.

The father has not been told of the disaster which has kept the family and Mansfield friends in suspense, in the hope that the plane had been able to land somewhere in San Joaquin valley over which they had been flying shortly before the last radio message from the plane. The younger Dirlams were students at Leland Stanford university, and left the San Francisco airport at 6:30 p. m. yesterday. The plane is believed to have landed or crashed shortly after midnight.

SCHOOLS GIVEN MORE 'CREDIT'

State Department Authorizes City and County Boards to Borrow $95,200.

The state department of education continued its "credit plan" of operation for schools today by authorizing Mansfield and Richland county schools to borrow $96,298 against future cash allocations under the state foundation program.

Mansfield schools, which have been hard-pressed for funds to pay teachers' salaries, will receive $45,323, but the amount must be borrowed from a local bank if the schools are to benefit by it immediately. The board of education is required to pay interest on the notes until they are retired by the state.

The county's rural schools were authorized to borrow $50,975, but a number of the schools were not expected to ask for loans now, since they are in better financial condition than city schools. Shelby schools will get $13,745, represented in authorization to borrow.

The distribution of $8,288,900 in notes for the first quarter of the year boosted the state's school debt under the Foundation program to $14,087,720.

In making the distribution, Assistant Director of Education Dick Smith said "conditions are much worse than a year ago from a financial standpoint." He added that it will be almost impossible for the state to retire notes for school operation after June 1 un-

State-Wide Vaccination Against Smallpox Urged

Ohio Health Official Who Helped Fight Disease In Richland County Proposes New Law.

State laws requiring vaccination of all Ohio residents against smallpox to avert future outbreaks such as Richland county has just experienced were advocated today by Dr. Finlay Van Orsdall, chief of the communicable disease division of the state health department.

Dr. Van Orsdall, who was in Mansfield two weeks ago to survey the smallpox epidemic in the county, was quoted in an International News Service dispatch to The News-Journal as saying that there is little hope of obtaining mass inoculation under present laws.

He pointed out that states with compulsory vaccination, such as Massachusetts, have had no smallpox cases this winter. In Richland county alone, 93 cases have been reported since Jan. 14, and the county had over 80 cases at one time. No new cases were reported today in the county.

Approved By School Board.

The Mansfield board of education voted compulsory vaccination for children of pre-school age more than a week ago and the county board last Saturday recommended that the village and township boards vote compulsory immunization.

Approximately 40,000 persons, including virtually all of the 11,000 school pupils in Mansfield and Richland county, have been vaccinated against smallpox, county health authorities estimated.

Pupils in Mansfield schools were kept at home for 17 days after the compulsory vaccination order went into effect unless they consented to be vaccinated. Only 50 of the 6,300 city school pupils were not treated.

Dr. Van Orsdall said widespread inoculation against diphtheria has almost conquered that malady in Ohio, with only 20 cases reported last week in the state.

He said measles has been most prevalent this winter in all sections of Ohio, causing a number of schools to close to ward off epidemics.

HUNTER WINS SKIRMISH ON SEWAGE PLANT

Council Ok's Ordinance By 5 to 3 Vote, Without Word of Comment.

UPHOLDS PRESENT SET-UP

Measure Creating Positions at Plant Amended, Allows Hiring of Outsider.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter today had won his first skirmish with city council as the result of its 5 to 3 approval last night to continue the present plan of supervision and operation of the city's $300,000 sewage disposal plant through the passage of three pieces of legislation.

A new ordinance on the operating and supervision set-up, differing with the old one in several ways, was presented at last evening's session, and without a word of comment was voted on by council members who had split in a heated pre-meeting caucus two weeks ago on the question of hiring a plant operator without previous experience.

With Councilman James E. Crum out of the city on business —the ranks of the voting members was reduced to eight.

Party Lines Broken.

Fred Miller, Democrat, and two Republicans, Russell D. Porch and George C. Kyle, who had previously declared themselves opposed to the present plan of operation of the plant, cast the negative votes. Crum was identified with this group also.

Those voting for the ordinances were C. N. Shultz, Republican, and George Berg, Lester D. Hunter, Harry M. Emmons and Arthur L. Croak, Democrats.

Motion for adoption of the measures was made by Shultz after a previous motion had been approved, making several changes in the ordinance creating the positions and fixing the salaries of the sewage plant staff.

Omit Residence Clause.

It was learned that Shultz and two Democrats, Miller and Berg had met over the week-end and drafted the measure that omitted the clause requiring the hiring of a plant superintendent who was a resident of Mansfield. It was pointed out that with the clause

STILL GAINING

Pershing Sleeps Heavily as Condition Improves.

TUCSON, Ariz.—(AP)—Gen. John J. Pershing accumulated new strength from quiet sleep today to renew his almost miraculous progress against an illness which, though still critical, no longer brought fears of momentary death. He slept heavily, as he did the previous night, and his condition showed "favorable signs" to Dr. Roland Davison.

His temperature was normal, he took food and fluids with little difficulty, and the absence of a relapse was encouraging, Dr. Davison said.

Table Tennis, No. 1 Indoor Sport, In Spotlight as City Stages Tournament

Game Sweeps U. S.—Old and Young to Wield Tiny Paddles In 'Y' Event.

The Y. M. C. A. tomorrow will conduct its annual city-wide tournament in what has become the nation's No. 1 indoor sport—table tennis.

Table tennis, or ping pong, the trade name by which the game is known by many people, has risen steadily in popularity during the past five or six years to take the place of the outstanding winter sport in Y. M. C. A.'s, churches, and homes throughout the country.

What is responsible for so many people playing table tennis? Donald Cram, Y. M. C. A. physical director, believes the exercise and amusement received from the game was responsible for its popularity.

"The adoption of standard rules for competition in the past 10 years also has helped its popularity," he added.

Who plays this game? Cram says an average of 100 boys and men between the ages of 8 and 45 years of age play table tennis daily at the "Y." This wide range of ages includes grade, junior, and senior high school students, as well as doctors, dentists, lawyers, and business and professional men.

Among the outstanding players in Mansfield are Dr. D. A. Weir, chairman of the Mansfield tournament, and also chairman of the state tournament to be held in Columbus, March 19; Frank Balbaugh, city champion for a number of years; Robert Ellison, last year's champion; William

BROTHER, SISTER AMONG 9 ABOARD MISSING LINER

Tracy and Mary Lou Dirlam, Stanford Students, Were Flying to Bedside of Father, Seriously Ill; Ship Down In California Mountains.

BULLETIN

BURBANK, Cal.—(INS)—Balked by driving rainfall, searching crews plodded slowly over unbeaten paths and mountain trails in the rugged Tehachapi mountains between Fresno and Bakersfield today in search of a missing TWA passenger plane, feared to have crashed with nine persons aboard, two of them from Mansfield, O.

Two Mansfielders, J. Tracy Dirlam, 21, and his sister, Mary Lou, 19, were among the nine persons on board the missing TWA airliner which either crashed or made a forced landing somewhere in the mountains of eastern California shortly after 12:28 a. m. (EST) this morning.

While the plane was an object of frantic search today, Jay Dirlam, assistant secretary of the Mansfield Savings and Loan company, and father of the two missing students, was waging a battle for his life in his Woodland home, unaware of the plight of his children, who left San Francisco last night to fly to his bedside. Dirlam, son of an old and well known Mansfield family, suffered a heart attack early this week.

The Transcontinental and Western airliner carrying six passengers and a crew of three, left San Francisco at 6:30 p. m. yesterday, en route to Albuquerque, N. M., flying by way of Los Angeles. The Dirlams, both students at Leland-Stanford university, expected to land at Columbus airport at 2:20 p. m. today. They were called home by the serious illness of their father.

The plane is believed to have either landed or crashed early this morning in the rugged mountainous country along the storm-swept Tehachapi mountains in southeastern California. It was caught in a sudden storm of rain and wind as it flew over the mountains at 11:30 last night. Ice formed on the wings, according to Associated Press dispatches to The News-Journal, rain fell in torrents and static interfered with the radio. During the next hour the plane seemingly wandered in the air over the San Joaquin valley, apparently trying to dodge the storm and keep on the radio beacon.

Ready to Land—Last Message.

The last heard from the plane was when the pilot, John D. Graves, radioed that he was preparing to drop from 10,000 feet to land. Then there was silence, and no more was heard from the distressed ship.

News of the lost plane reached the Dirlam family this morning when a neighbor heard it over the radio and informed them. Every effort was being made to keep word of it from Dirlam because of his illness. Grandparents of Tracy and Mary Lou are Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Tracy, 446 Park avenue west, and Howard Dirlam, who has been identified with Mansfield's financial life for many years.

Up to noon today the family had not heard from the airline officials, nor had they received any official notice that the plane was missing, Mr. Tracy said. He said that as soon as he heard of the disaster he had notified his son, Rufus, at Salt Lake City to go at once to the region of the accident, where sheriff's deputies, police, farmers and forest rangers are searching the territory, under the direction of TWA officials.

Weather Hampers Search.

All planes on the coast were grounded by the continuing wind and rain, and officials said it would be impossible to use planes in the search until the weather clears.

Search for the plane was being directed by Jack Frye, president

SALE OF BONDS RULED ILLEGAL

Court Holds Conservancy District Lacks Authority to Tax Property Not Benefited.

MOUNT VERNON—The Fifth District court of appeals today permanently enjoined the Muskingum Conservancy District from issuing $1,500,000 in bonds and held that it lacked authority to levy general taxes on property not benefiting by the district's flood control projects.

The court, in its unanimous decision, upheld a temporary injunction granted by Common Pleas Judge Clarence U. Ahl of Bucyrus in the taxpayer's suit of Charles Hostetter of Massillon.

Counsel for the district argued before the court that development of a recreation and conservation program in the 14-county area was the paramount motive behind the proposal to issue $1,500,000 in general levy bonds.

"This proposition (conservancy district) was sold to the people of the northern part of the district because 11 of the 14 dams would have conservation features," C. A. Fisher of New Philadelphia, a member of the district's counsel, told the appellate court Feb. 23.

"Conservation and recreation features should be assessed against all property owners of the district."

Judge Charles W. Montgomery wrote the opinion which was concurred in by Judge Claude C. Sherick and Charles C. Lemert.

Prosecutor A. C. L. Barthelmeh of Stark county, who represented Hostetter, argued that approval of a general levy on all taxpayers in the district might make them liable for additional general taxes to meet the district's $6,500,000 share of the flood control project's cost.

Great Britain Launches Huge Air Force Mobilization

EMPIRE AIMS AT FLEET OF 10,000 PLANES

Plans $85,000,000 Increase In Appropriations to Build Fighting Planes.

(By United Press)

LONDON — Great Britain announced the greatest air force estimates in her peace time history today and disclosed that she had mobilized a corps of scientists to aid in secret air defense plans.

Air force estimates totaling £73,500,000 ($367,000,000) were announced for the fiscal year which begins April 1, an increase of £17,000,000 ($85,000,000) over those for the current year.

But by allotments from the £400,000,000 ($2,000,000,000) defense loan authorized under a five-year defense plan, the grand total will be raised to £102,720,000 $513,000,000), an increase of £20,220,000 ($101,000,000) over that for the current year. This increase alone is greater than the entire appropriation for any year between 1928 and 1934 inclusive.

Doubled In Three Years.

An Air ministry memorandum accompanying the estimates disclosed that since April 1935 the home defense air fleet had been more than doubled—from 52 to 123 squadrons.

The detailed figures for planes were not given. But certain sources have reported that Great Britain is well on the way to a fleet of 10,000 planes, the greatest in the world.

It was disclosed that between April 1935 and March 1938 approximately 4,500 pilots and 40,000 air men had entered the service compared to the previous three-year average of 900 pilots and 4800 men.

Present Strength.

In squadrons, the present strength of 123 squadrons is composed of 68 bomber squadrons, 30 fighter squadrons, 15 general reconnaissance and torpedo squadrons and 10 army cooperation squadrons.

As regards general air defense, the ministry showed its concern over the country's vulnerability from the air. It was said that home defense "inevitably occupied a position of paramount importance."

But no information was given as to details of ground defense.

It was merely noted that intensive study was being made and that new methods of defense were being devised.

Specific achievements, it was added, "must remain secret." Here, however, the memorandum said laconically that eminent scientists now were participating in defense work and were giving valuable assistance.

Curious Italians Await Marriage of Garbo, Musician

RAVELLO, Italy —(U.P.)— The town halls of a dozen villages in this romantic region, which for centuries has enjoyed the patronage of lovers, were watched today for the marriage bans of Leopold Stokowski, famous musician, and Greta Garbo, movie actress.

The white haired man with the long tapering fingers and the tall blond woman, called by the natives "Donna Misteriosa," (the mystery woman) who had aroused the curiosity of the natives for days by their strolls from their villa overlooking the Bay of Naples, had been identified definitely as Stokowski and Miss Garbo.

It was taken for granted that the long standing rumors of their romance were true that they soon would be married. It was reported that they already had been married—at Napies—but official records disclosed that they hadn't, at least in Italy. Italian law requires the posting of marriage bans a week before the ceremony.

Stokowski came to the Caruso hotel early today to accept a transoceanic telephone call from Philadelphia where he became famous as conductor of the symphony orchestra there. The correspondent accosted him and asked about his plans and Miss Garbo's plans.

"I never talk about personal things," he said. "If you want to interview me on music or the cinema, I am at your disposal."

Spring is a lot nearer than most people believe, Mansfield sportsmen contend. Recent snows have not changed their minds, either. Wild ducks are arriving earlier than usual this year, and this is always a sure sign of an early spring, they claim. Hundreds of the fowl have been seen in the marshlands in the vicinity of Mansfield.

State highway patrolmen will know how to handle situations with their fists in the future. Johnny Kilbane, former world's featherweight boxing champion, who made many friends in the city while assisting in the recent inquiry at the reformatory, will instruct the patrolmen in the art of self defense at the Columbus training school. The job will not interfere with his work as special investigator for the attorney general's office.

Mansfielders going to work between 6 and 7 o'clock in the mornings—yes, really, a lot of them do—have been interested in the migration of crows for the past week. He played six games blindfolded, without losing a contest, but was held to a draw in four of them. Checker fans from a number of nearby towns were here to watch him in action.

DIRIGIBLES UP FOR NEW STUDY

Navy Heads Act After Allocation for New Craft Is Approved.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Navy officials today renewed their study of recent developments in lighter than air craft, acting after the house naval affairs committee allocated $3,000,000 for construction of a new navy dirigible.

Studies of dirigibles had lagged recently because of the seeming improbability that this government would engage in new dirigible construction in the near future. Top ranking navy officials had discouraged dirigible construction at this time, preferring appropriations for construction of surface craft, submarines and airplanes.

M'GEE BLAMES INSURANCE MEN

Accused Labor Leader Testifies They Staged Window Smashing Campaign.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—In the record of the Campbell-McGee extortion trial today was a statement from John E. McGee, accused labor leader, that plate glass insurance salesmen carried on a window smashing campaign here in 1932 "simply to sell insurance."

McGee, laborers' district council president and former organizer for the window cleaners' union, and Donald A. Campbell, painters' district council president, are charged with obtaining $1,200 from Vernon Stouffer, restaurant operator, under threat of labor trouble.

Edwin D. Sweet, casualty company local manager, had testified for the state that McGee attempted to make a "deal" with him under which casualty writers would be notified in advance of vandalism so as to cancel policies on establishments likely to be attacked.

On cross examination McGee said he told Sweet he believed salesmen were responsible. The defendant claimed he threatened to "take it to the newspapers," and that Sweet visited the prosecutor the next day.

McGee testified yesterday that he collected more than $3,400 as the window cleaners' representative and that the money was not entered in union books.

"It was my money," McGee said. "I spent that much and more in organizing the union."

NEW PITTSBURG BUILDING BURNS

Fire Destroys Residence Last Used As Company Office.

WILLARD—Fire at 6:30 a. m. today destroyed a two-story colonial residence and office building at New Pittsburg, five miles south of here.

Origin of the fire is not known, as the building was unoccupied. The building was located in the heart of the marsh district near here, and was owned by the Federal Union Insurance company of Columbus.

The building was constructed in 1929 as a residence and office for the manager of the Ohio Farm company, at the time settlers were brought there to farm the lands, adjoining the property.

The building had been occupied at various times since then. John Pastema of Celeryville had just completed papering a portion of the interior, and had planned to move in today, and to farm a small tract of land nearby. No estimate was made on the damage caused by the fire.

JILTED DIVORCEE TESTIFIES RECTOR WANTED TO 'GO PLACES'

(By Associated Press)

STEUBENVILLE—The Rev. Harold C. Zeis, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, returned to federal court today to attack the story of Cora Lillian Burnham that he jilted her to "hobnob with success" and "go places" by marrying Mrs. Emma C. Sharpe, wealthy society leader.

The 43-year-old divorcee is suing the rector for $100,000 for breach of promise. She testified yesterday that he broke their agreement to marry in 1935 and then "sat by my bed the rest of the night."

Wife Hears Story.

Mr. Zeis, 38, who sat impassively as Miss Burnham related her story, expected to prove, his attorney said, that they mutually agreed after an eight year courtship to "go their different ways."

Miss Burnham tearfully testified that he courted her ardently for eight years and then came to her New York hotel and told her:

"I want to be free, I've got to be free. I'm going to marry Emma Harpe. I'm going to hobnob with success. I'm going places. You can't help me. You've only held me back."

Mrs. Zeis sat with her husband during opening statements of attorneys, when endearing phrases from his letters were read to the jury by Harley S. Cook, attorney for Miss Burnham.

Mrs. Zeis, daughter of the late Col. John J. Carter, wealthy Titusville, Pa., oil man, will be a witness for her husband.

Married in 1936.

Mr. Zeis and the widow of A. B. Sharpe, steel executive, were married Jan. 3, 1936.

Miss Burnham testified yesterday that the rector brought her a gown for "my trousseau, perfume and pajamas," when he returned from Europe.

TWO-YEAR LOW

Building Permits for February Drop to $32,850.

The business recession had a marked effect on building activity in Mansfield in February with valuations dropping to a new two year low, a survey of permits showed today.

February building valuations estimated at $32,850, slightly under the $33,110 recorded for January, and more than $5,000 under the $38,850 for February last year.

Total cost of all building projects for the first two months of this year, including remodeling, alterations and additons, residential and industrial construction, totals $65,488 as compared with $66,960 for the same period last year.

Only four permits were issued last month for new buildings and only three were for residential construction. The other was for the construction of an $8,000 filling station by the Standard Oil company of Ohio on Lexington avenue at Mendota street.

VERDICT ENDS SECRET TRIAL FOR MINISTER

Rev. Niemoeller Ordered to Jail For Three Months Unless He Pays $600 Fine.

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—The Rev. Martin Niemoeller, for five years a zealous leader of protestant church opposition to German government regulation, was sentenced today to seven months imprisonment but time already spent in jail cancelled the sentence.

Niemoller was convicted of speaking against leaders of the Reich and of violation pulpit regulations. A third charge, of inciting to disobedience against the staff, previously had been dropped.

He must go to jail, however, for three months unless he pays a $600 fine for speaking disparagingly of leading personages of the Reich.

Crowd Outside Court.

Time already served was held also to have paid a $200 fine for violating decrees stipulating usages of the pulpit.

A great crowd milled around the courthouse before sentence was pronounced on the militant German Evangelical church pastor, who went to trial Feb. 7 on charges of inciting to disobedience against the state and violating pulpit regulations.

Invted to the courtroom were a hundred guests including the pastor's three children who were on a front bench. 50 foreign press representatives and 90 ordinary spectators who were lucky enough to find available seats.

The verdict was pronounced as Niemoeller listened serenely, smiling at his wife and children.

The court, after reading its verdict, declared, "as the public security may be endangered by public reading of the court's reasons for the verdict, the public will now be excluded again."

The pastor was tried before a secret tribunal, after his bitter protest in a 45-minute speech to the three presiding judges on the opening day.

"Why am I here under the accusation of a traitor?" he cried. 'I've done nothing to justify such a charge."

The 46-year-old minister for years was an outspoken campaigner against Fuehrer Hitler's efforts to Nazify religion in Germany. This campaign ended with his arrest July 1.

His trial could have been avoided had he been willing to agree to cease his attacks, but he refused staunchly to do this.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

The Clark Candidacy.

PROBABLY the position in which Senator Bennett Clark, of Missouri, finds himself this year, in which he must run for renomination and re-election, has done more to dispel political fear of the president and promote independence among Democratic senators than any other single thing.

No other situation makes the talk of administration reprisals against recalcitrant senators seem as ridiculous or minimizes the value of such White House indorsements as Mr. Roosevelt gave Senator Barkley in Kentucky, or his son James, who, it is claimed, has sold more insurance in four years than any other man in the world, gave to Senator Pepper, of Florida. The Clark situation, so far as known, is unique, and the record is interesting.

* * *

IN THE first place, Senator Clark has opposed the New Deal program and the president's pet proposals as strongly as any man in the senate. He not only was among the foremost in the fight against the court-packing bill but he is against the Roosevelt departmental reorganization scheme and the big-navy bill. Last year he was one of the senators whom administration politicians marked for "liquidation." He, with some eight others coming up this year, was to be "purged." Last fall certain political scouts were sent into Missouri to make preliminary arrangements for the "liquidation." Though his friends say he has no such aspiration at this time, the fact that Mr. Clark's name had been mentioned as a possible Democratic presidential nominee in 1940 did not diminish the administration desire to take punitive steps in his direction.

* * *

ALL OF WHICH lends significance to the political facts as they exist today in Missouri. It is said that in the entire history of the state there has never been a situation paralleling Senator Clark's at this time. He already has the outspoken indorsement of every faction and every Democratic leader of importance in the state. In addition, such Republican leaders as Jesse W. Barrett, nominee for governor last year, and Arthur Curtis, Republican national committeeman, are supporting him. It seems that the Republicans will have only a nominal candidate against him and many of them do not want even that.

* * *

THE FACT is that an early movement among Republicans formally to indorse Senator Clark was dropped only because of the chance it might give some Democrat to enter the primaries and make trouble for Senator Clark by charging that he was a Republican. The trouble would not have been serious, but Senator Clark's friends didn't want any. As things now are there probably will be no candidate at all in the primaries against him. His renomination is conceded and, while in 1932, his majority was about 500,000, there is every reason to believe this time it will be even more. The prediction is that he will be re-elected by a greater majority than any candidate ever got in the state for any office.

* * *

ALTOGETHER his is a rather extra-ordinarily felicitous position and its contemplation from the White House hardly can be pleasant. All idea of opposing Senator Clark with a New Deal candidate now has been abandoned. The reason for the abandonment was solely because there was no way to "get going," and it is certainly significant of the change since the 1936 campaign when no candidate felt safe unless he was clutching Mr. Roosevelt's coat tails. Among other things, it seems to mean that the Missouri delegation to the 1940 national convention will not be an administration delegation, deliverable to the Roosevelt choice. The idea that Mr. Roosevelt himself will be nominated is precluded by a great many things, including the party situation as reflected in congress. No really intelligent politician takes any stock in it.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The Bartholomews' return to court—this time to ask that daddy's percentage of Freddie's salary be trimmed—doesn't interest Freddie, if you can believe his Aunt Myllicent.

Says she: "He hasn't been concerned about the court troubles since it was settled that he and I wouldn't be separated. . . . When I came in from court yesterday the only question he asked was, 'Was it a hard day, Girlie?'"

By this time, of course, you wouldn't expect a boy to get excited about routine. Freddie's new love is flying. He's done a bit at a dual-control plane, while Aunt Myllicent shuddered but went along. He's grounded now—by studio order, he thinks.

Incidentally, there's a nice story about Freddie and Miles Mander, the English author-actor-director playing his miserly uncle in "Kidnaped." Mander was the first movie director to encourage Aunt Myllicent in her effort to place Freddie in pictures. He played a bit in a Mander film in England when he was six. That encouragement lasted four years—until "Copperfield." And the Bartholomews kept the "Kidnaped" role open until Mander recovered from an illness and could play it.

One of the best jobs of salvage in recent times is that done on the career of Robert Taylor. The young man seemed finished after a poor picture and that barrage of Great Lover stuff that marked his cross-country voyage to England. On his return trip there weren't any schoolgirls hiding under his stateroom bed. The picture he brought back, "A Yank at Oxford," is clicking hugely—and the athletic, virile role is helping. This, of course, is the planned objective, but Bob has had no little to do with it himself. His attitude in taking pretty merciless kidding has won friends among the kidders.

Rudy Vallee is another idol of the femmes who's survived a lot of heckling and, apparently, won a sounder foundation of popularity.

Asked him the other day, on "The Gold Diggers of Paris" set, if he thought the judicious use of his good right arm on several beheckled occasions was responsible.

He thought not.

"The only thing that's mattered," he said, "is what has gone into the microphone on my program each week. I've been fortunate in being able to keep the music coming the way a number of people like it—and that's what really counts."

HELEN WILLS MOODY SERIOUS ABOUT COMEBACK THIS YEAR.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
(INS Sports Editor)

NEW YORK—Three years ago, Helen Wills Moody, easily the most dramatic figure in women's lawn tennis, suddenly decided to play a comeback in the Wimbledon championships and, probably unconsciously, produced an almost romantic episode with her "die hard" last set win over Helen Jacobs in the final round. Today, I'm able to state for the first time that Mrs. Moody means and hopes and intends to repeat the performance. this time without the dramatics.

In other words, she plans to play in the Wimbledon all-comers singles of 1938, pass up the American singles at Forest Hills and, all told, have the time of her young life. The latter statement is to be taken literally.

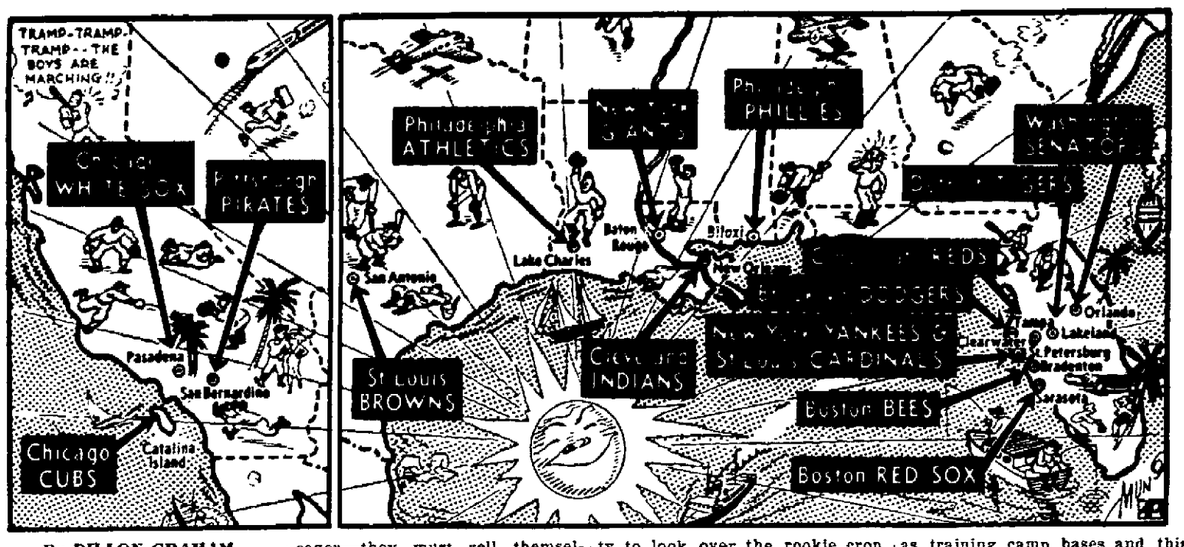
"What of it?" she is reported to have said to friends in California when told that her lack of tournament "edge" would get her knocked off at Wimbledon. "Always before, I played there to protect my prestige. This time, I'll be playing for fun and if somebody beats me in the first round—I repeat, what of it? I'll still have my fun."

That's hardly in keeping with the little lady of the impassive poker expression and the so-called "killer" instinct we all loved to prate about a few years ago. It doesn't even team up with her entirely appealing behavior when, "down" at match-point at 5-2 against Miss Jacobs in the final set, she produced an effort that won't miss, couldn't and can't with any American to whom courage is the supreme virtue.

We, as a matter of fact, always made a point of Mrs. Moody's "coldness" on the courts and probably we'd still be at it today, not recognizing meantime that the lady has undergone quite a conspicuous change. In the first place, she has stopped being emotionally restrained and proved it by tossing her racquet into the air with almost schoolgirl enthusiasm when she scored the final point against Miss Jacobs three years ago. In the second, she apparently is no longer thinking in terms of headlines.

In other words, the lady is almost an idealistic amateur today. She even thinks like one.

BALL PLAYERS CAVORT BENEATH SOUTHERN SKIES AS SPRING WORKOUTS COST BASEBALL $5,000,000



By DILLON GRAHAM
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

ON THE theory that cold cash is important, anything that costs half a million dollars seems worth looking into.

That, roughly, is the cost of baseball's spring training

Late every February the 16 major league clubs — and many minor league teams—strike out for southern bases for six weeks of conditioning and practice tilts.

Beneath warm skies and to the gentle swishing of palm trees, several hundred players scamper about on diamonds in Florida, California, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas.

Veterans move along with easy strides, gradually shaking the winter kinks out of their muscles; rookies are more anxious and eager—they must sell themselves.

There are more than a hundred rookies trying to prove their abalities, ambitious to be stamped as major leaguers. Some clubs carry only a few rookies, others offer opportunities to many. The size of their rookie corps, along with the style in which they live at resort hotels and the extensiveness of their exhibition game tours, varies the spring training cost. Some clubs spend $30,000 while others go as high as $70,000, or more.

* * *

The purposes of spring training are five-fold:

1. It serves to condition players after a winter of inaction.

2. It gives managers opportunity to look over the rookie crop, and to experiment in trying players at different positions.

3. The exhibition games afford the actual competition necessary to have the teams ready to go at top speed once the season opens in mid-April.

4. The training trips send the teams as baseball missionaries to localities where high-class ball is seldom seen. It increases interest in the game.

5. The ballyhoo value is advertising that couldn't be bought. Newspaper writers trek along with every team and the folks back home get daily digests of the activities of their favorite players.

The clubs generally get guarantees from the cities they choose as training camp bases and this cuts their expenses some.

It's hard work, combined with a nice vacation. After they've done their stint in the practice yards, the players have all the benefits and pleasures of winter resorts, live at the best hotels and sign checks for sumptuous food.

* * *

It seems that Pop Anson, Chicago Nationals manager, ordered the first training camp in 1885 when his players reported out of shape. And John J. McGraw, New York Giant pilot, was the first to take his players to the top hotels. In the early days many baseball players were rowdies and it was McGraw who persuaded the inn keeps that players could be gentlemenly guests.

Sports Annex Second-Round City League Championship

Wallop Westinghouse, 49 to 33, to Register Eighth Straight League Win; Freddie Lewis Sets New Individual Scoring Record as Elks Win.

By CHARLES MARTIN

THE undefeated Yuncker Sports combine annexed the second-round championship of the City Class A league last night by drubbing the Westinghouse Electrics, 49 to 33, at Senior high before another disappointing crowd.

Breaking loose with a determined second-half rally the Sports incountered little trouble in chalking up their eight consecutive league victory. It was the club's 13th straight cage triumph of the season.

Lewis Sets Record.

Freddie Lewis shared the spotlight with the Yuncker club last night as he established a new season individual scoring record by dropping in 28 points to lead the Elks club to a 64 to 29 decision over the Ira D. Ling Canzols.

Lewis, former Mansfield high star, collected 13 buckets and a pair of charity tosses to top the 16-point record held by his teammate, Gene Brandon.

The Sports, with Al Stickler, Bob Fisher and Tom Farrell supplying the major portion of the offense, found the Electrics a little troublesome in the opening half, but once they started clicking it was just too bad. The score was tied four times in the early minutes of the first half.

With its rebounding playing an important role, the Yuncker aggregation began to add to its total late in the initial half, and then really opened up after the rest period. The Sports sank the first seven shots after the intermission to pile up a lead that was never threatened.

Yunckers led, 18 to 12, at halftime, but in the early minutes of the second chapter increased their advantage to a 30 to 14 count.

Stickler, Fisher and Farrell contributed 10 points apiece to pace the champions, while Howard Poole and Bob Shade topped the Electrics with eight apiece.

The Elks took sole possession of second place in the standings by walloping the Canzols. Westinghouse had shared the runner-up spot before losing last night.

Lewis went on his scoring spree from the opening whistle, and the half had scored all his team's points. The Elks led, 9 to 5, at halftime. The Canzols connected only twice from the field in the first half.

After the intermission Lewis, aided by Russ Hoff and Adam Brandt, put the game on ice in short order. Before the Canzols could collect themselves the winners held an overwhelming, 30 to 6, advantage. It was the Canzol's fourth straight defeat.

Hoff and Brandt tallied 14 points apiece to follow Lewis in the scoring column, while Fred Buzard led the Canzols with 13 points.

FRASCELLA AFTER MARK

Wooster Ace Seeking to Boost Season's Total to 400 Points.

COLUMBUS, O. — (U.P.) — Nick Frascella, one of the finest shots ever to be on an Ohio basketball team, today set a dual goal for himself as he prepared to play the semi-final game of his college career.

The great Wooster forward will be seeking to boost his season's aggregate close to the 400 point mark and strengthen his bid for the state's individual scoring title when the Scots face Kenyon at Gambier tonight. No other games involving Ohio teams are scheduled.

Has Scored 361 Points.

Frascella now has 361 points for 16 games this season. In addition to the game against Kenyon, the Scots' ace will have an opportunity to boost his point total against Muskingum Saturday night.

When a sophomore Frascella scored 296 points to establish a new all-time state intercollegiate scoring record. Last season he saw "Chuck" Chuckovits of Toledo step in and break the mark by scoring 352 points.

Both Frascella and Chuckovits already have surpassed the latter's record of last season. Chuckovits has 372 points for 19 games. He has one more contest to play, that against Loyola of Chicago.

In an earlier appearance against Kenyon this season, Frascella scored 31 points.

Allen Due In Indians' Camp

Star Pitcher's Arrival Leaves Only Hudlin Unreported.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(INS)—Johnny Allen, the Cleveland Indians' star pitcher, was due to arrive in training camp today, leaving but one hurler, Holdout Willis Hudlin, unreported.

Meanwhile Manager Oscar Vitt allowed the pitchers and rookie infielders already on deck to go through a bit more rigorous exercise than they have in the past two days. He also discussed a proposed shakeup in the batting order.

Earl Averill, Vitt said, would be good in the fifth spot, instead of Julius Solters. Earl has been batting third since he joined the Tribe back in the dark ages. Vitt said he wanted a fast, left-handed hitter for fifth.

THE United States commerce department gives Hollywood something more to worry about in the announcement that foreign motion picture studios turned out 1,809 film in 1937 as against 1,400 in 1936. Time was when foreign made films provided no competition to the American market, but in recent years the English studios have been turning out pictures that have as wide an appeal here as they do in England, for instance, "The Ghost Goes West," "Knight Without Armor," "Elephant Boy," all of the Korda pictures and those starring Charles Laughton and George Arliss. "Mayerling," a current bit, is so popular that it is bringing people from the "sticks" to the cities where it is being shown, and "Peter The Great" is popular. English trade papers have resented tremendously the fact that their pictures did not appeal to American audiences, but they are slowly making gains both in appeal and box office.

Lady and Her Butler.

Probably there never was a butler like William Powell outside the movies, but for entertainment purposes he undoubtedly will be much more satisfactory than the genuine article. But then he is a different kind of butler in "The Baroness and The Butler," which the Ohio offers the last half of the week, because he is the kind that gets himself elected to Parliament. The story (which served as a popular stage vehicle in Europe) is a nice combination of a New Deal in sociology and smart, scintillating dialogue. Opposite Powell is Annabella, the little French star who has been playing in English pictures and who makes her American movie debut in this picture. Needless to say she plays the baroness who is no end upset when her perfect butler is elected to represent her in the law making body.

* * *

Hoppy To The Rescue.

Hopalong Cassidy finds plenty to engage his wits and guns in "Cassidy of Bar 20," latest adventure to befall the redoubtable cowhand of the movies, which the Madison offers the last three days of the week, starting Thursday. Hoppy races to the defense of his sweetheart this time, who is beleagured on her ranch by cattle rustlers who are determined to force her out of business and out of the country. He sends Lucky back for reinforcements and when they arrive there is action around the old Spanish mission in which the rustlers have fortified themselves. Bill Boyd, as Hoppy, is supported by Nora Lane.

Stirring Love Story.

Guy Bolton's play, "The Dark Angel," must be good, for it was very successful as a stage play and twice it has been made into pictures that were far above the average. The first picture was a silent, with the lovely and unforgetable Vilma Banky, while the second one was made a year or so ago with Merle Oberon in the role Miss Banky had in the original film. Fredric March and Herbert Marshall are the two men in the talkie version which is being shown at the Majestic this week. It runs through Thursday. The story is one that is remembered long after other pictures are forgotten; for its tender love story and its beautiful photographic shots. The Majestic bill is rounded out with "Annie Oakley," starring Barbara Stanwyck.

Comedy at Ritz.

Packed with crackling merriment, romance, Gershwin music and the dancing of Fred Astaire, "Damsel in Distress," Ritz offering today and Thursday, is a potpourri of the things that make for light screen entertainment. George Burns and Gracie Allen add their own distinctive comedy while Joan Fontaine, sister of Olivia de Havilland, provides romance and pulchritude. Ray Nobel's orchestra has a featured spot in this Astaire picture. The bill is rounded out with another comedy, "The Perfect Specimen," in which Joan Blondel teaches Errol Flynn a thing or three about life.

City Files Demurrer in Answer to Woman's Suit for $2,500.

A demurrer asking dismissal of a $2,500 damage suit against the city of Mansfield had been filed today in common pleas court by City Solicitor Marion D. Ward, jr., on the grounds that statements in the petition do not constitute sufficient cause for action.

The suit was brought by Mrs. Mary Lutton, 118 Orange street, who contends she suffered serious injuries in a fall last March when she caught her foot in a hole in the sidewalk along East Fifth street.

The Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Devotion

By DR. WILLARD L. SPERRY

Ash Wednesday, March 2.

"We shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is." Read I John 3:1-3.

A Christian is a person who is Christlike. No one can quarrel with this description.

The meshes of our theological nets are too coarse to catch the free winds of his spirit. On the other hand, how often do we find ourselves saying of some act which we have just seen, "That was a Christian thing to do." The quality of the deed, and the way it was done, suggest Jesus. Lincoln, giving the Southern cavalrymen back their horses for the spring ploughing in '65, Father Damien working among the lepers on Molokai, John Hay returning the Boxes indemnity, Edith Cavell's last words about patriotism,—all these were Christian

Why, then, are there so many patently unChristlike Christians? Such persons are a commonplace, a puzzle, and a scandal. They probably have mistaken ideas as to the sort of person Jesus was. Surely the beginning of all Christianity is an initial willingness to let Jesus be himself.

Prayer: Teach us, O God, that where there is no vision the people perish and grant to us, who have named the name of Christ as our best name, clearness of spiritual sight that we may see him as he is. Amen.

HELEN WILLS MOODY SERIOUS ABOUT COMEBACK THIS YEAR.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
(INS Sports Editor)

NEW YORK—Three years ago, Helen Wills Moody, easily the most dramatic figure in women's lawn tennis, suddenly decided to play a comeback in the Wimbledon championships and, probably unconsciously, produced an almost romantic episode with her "die hard" last set win over Helen Jacobs in the final round. Today, I'm able to state for the first time that Mrs. Moody means and hopes and intends to repeat the performance, this time without the dramatics.

In other words, she plans to play in the Wimbledon all-comers singles of 1938, pass up the American singles at Forest Hills and, all told, have the time of her young life. The latter statement is to be taken literally.

"What of it?" she is reported to have said to friends in California when told that her lack of tournament "edge" would get her knocked off at Wimbledon. "Always before, I played there to protect my prestige. This time, I'll be playing for fun and if somebody beats me in the first round—I repeat, what of it? I'll still have my fun."

That's hardly in keeping with the little lady of the impassive poker expression and the so-called "killer" instinct we all loved to prate about a few years ago. It doesn't even team up with her entirely appealing behavior when, "down" at match-point at 5-2 against Miss Jacobs in the final set, she produced an effort that won't miss, couldn't and can't with any American to whom courage is the supreme virtue.

We, as a matter of fact, always made a point of Mrs. Moody's "coldness" on the courts and probably we'd still be at it today, not recognizing meantime that the lady has undergone quite a conspicuous change. In the first place, she has stopped being emotionally restrained and proved it by tossing her racquet into the air with almost schoolgirl enthusiasm when she scored the final point against Miss Jacobs three years ago. In the second, she apparently is no longer thinking in terms of headlines.

In other words, the lady is almost an idealistic amateur today. She even thinks like one.

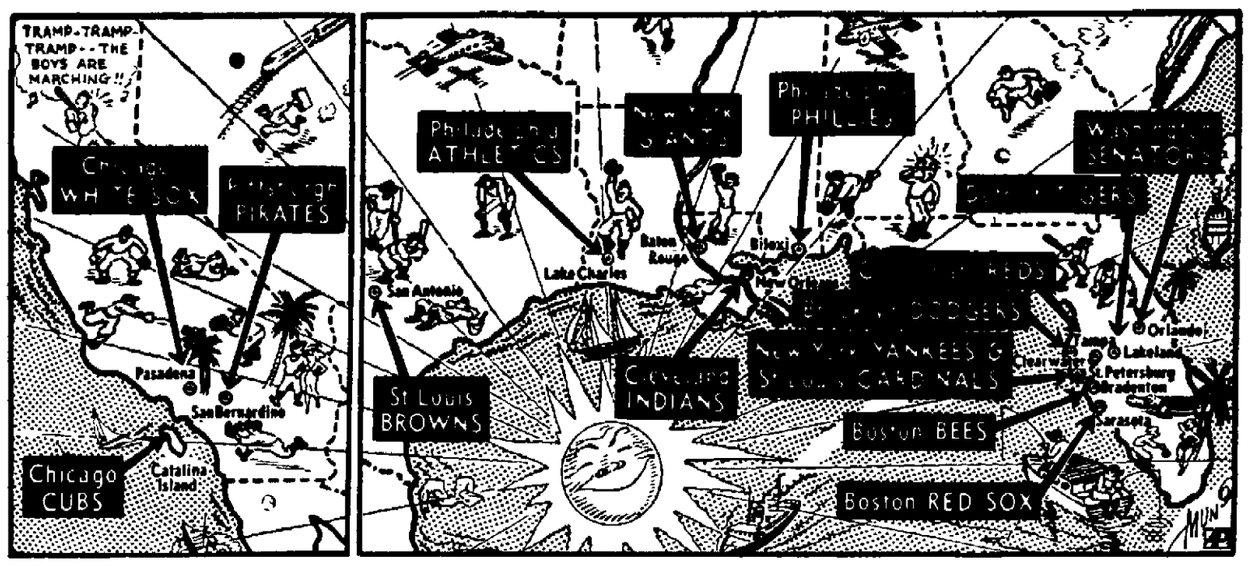
BALL PLAYERS CAVORT BENEATH SOUTHERN SKIES AS SPRING WORKOUTS COST BASEBALL $5,000,000



By DILLON GRAHAM
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

ON THE theory that cold cash is important, anything that costs half a million dollars seems worth looking into.

That, roughly, is the cost of baseball's spring training.

Late every February the 16 major league clubs — and many minor league teams—strike out for southern bases for six weeks of conditioning and practice tilts.

Beneath warm skies and to the gentle swishing of palm trees, several hundred players scamper about on diamonds in Florida, California, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas.

Veterans move along with easy strides, gradually shaking the winter kinks out of their muscles; rookies are more anxious and eager—they must sell themselves.

There are more than a hundred rookies trying to prove their abalities, ambitious to be stamped as major leaguers. Some clubs carry only a few rookies, others offer opportunities to many. The size of their rookie corps, along with the style in which they live at resort hotels and the extensiveness of their exhibition game tours, varies the spring training cost. Some clubs spend $30,000 while others go as high as $70,000, or more.

* * *

The purposes of spring training are five-fold:

1. It serves to condition players after a winter of inaction.

2. It gives managers opportunity to look over the rookie crop, and to experiment in trying players at different positions.

3. The exhibition games afford the actual competition necessary to have the teams ready to go at top speed once the season opens in mid-April.

4. The training trips send the teams as baseball missionaries to localities where high-class ball is seldom seen. It increases interest in the game.

5. The ballyhoo value is advertising that couldn't be bought. Newspaper writers trek along with every team and the folks back home get daily digests of the activities of their favorite players.

The clubs generally get guarantees from the cities they choose as training camp bases and this cuts their expenses some.

It's hard work, combined with a nice vacation. After they've done their stint in the practice yards, the players have all the benefits and pleasures of winter resorts, live at the best hotels and sign checks for sumptuous food.

* * *

It seems that Pop Anson, Chicago Nationals manager, ordered the first training camp in 1885 when his players reported out of shape. And John J. McGraw, New York Giant pilot, was the first to take his players to the top hotels. In the early days many baseball players were rowdies and it was McGraw who persuaded the inn keeps that players could be gentlemenly guests.

Sports Annex Second-Round City League Championship

Wallop Westinghouse, 49 to 33, to Register Eighth Straight League Win; Freddie Lewis Sets New Individual Scoring Record as Elks Win.

By CHARLES MARTIN

THE undefeated Yuncker Sports combine annexed the second-round championship of the City Class A league last night by drubbing the Westinghouse Electrics, 49 to 33, at Senior high before another disappointing crowd.

Breaking loose with a determined second-half rally the Sports incountered little trouble in chalking up their eight consecutive league victory. It was the club's 13th straight cage triumph of the season.

Lewis Sets Record.

Freddie Lewis shared the spotlight with the Yuncker club last night as he established a new season individual scoring record by dropping in 28 points to lead the Elks club to a 64 to 29 decision over the Ira D. Ling Canzols.

Lewis, former Mansfield high star, collected 13 buckets and a pair of charity tosses to top the 16-point record held by his teammate, Gene Brandon.

The Sports, with Al Stickler, Bob Fisher and Tom Farrell supplying the major portion of the offense, found the Electrics a little troublesome in the opening half, but once they started clicking it was just too bad. The score was tied four times in the early minutes of the first half.

With its rebounding playing an important role, the Yuncker aggregation began to add to its total late in the initial half, and then really opened up after the rest period. The Sports sank the first seven shots after the intermission to pile up a lead that was never threatened.

Yunckers led, 18 to 12, at halftime, but in the early minutes of the second chapter increased their advantage to a 30 to 14 count.

Stickler, Fisher and Farrell contributed 10 points apiece to pace the champions, while Howard Poole and Bob Shade topped the Electrics with eight apiece.

The Elks took sole possession of second place in the standings by walloping the Canzols. Westinghouse had shared the runner-up spot before losing last night.

Lewis went on his scoring spree from the opening whistle, and the half had scored all his team's points. The Elks led, 9 to 5, at halftime. The Canzols connected only twice from the field in the first half.

After the intermission Lewis, aided by Russ Hoff and Adam Brandt, put the game on ice in short order. Before the Canzols could collect themselves the winners held an overwhelming, 30 to 6, advantage. It was the Canzol's fourth straight defeat.

Hoff and Brandt tallied 14 points apiece to follow Lewis in the scoring column, while Fred Buzard led the Canzols with 13 points.

FRASCELLA AFTER MARK

Wooster Ace Seeking to Boost Season's Total to 400 Points.

COLUMBUS, O. — (U.P.) — Nick Frascella, one of the finest shots ever to be on an Ohio basketball team, today set a dual goal for himself as he prepared to play the semi-final game of his college career.

The great Wooster forward will be seeking to boost his season's aggregate close to the 400 point mark and strengthen his bid for the state's individual scoring title when the Scots face Kenyon at Gambier tonight. No other games involving Ohio teams are scheduled.

Has Scored 361 Points.

Frascella now has 361 points for 16 games this season. In addition to the game against Kenyon, the Scots' ace will have an opportunity to boost his point total against Muskingum Saturday night.

When a sophomore Frascella scored 296 points to establish a new all-time state intercollegiate scoring record. Last season he saw "Chuck" Chuckovits of Toledo step in and break the mark by scoring 352 points.

Both Frascella and Chuckovits already have surpassed the latter's record of last season. Chuckovits has 372 points for 19 games. He has one more contest to play, that against Loyola of Chicago.

In an earlier appearance against Kenyon this season, Frascella scored 31 points.

Allen Due In Indians' Camp

Star Pitcher's Arrival Leaves Only Hudlin Unreported.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(INS)—Johnny Allen, the Cleveland Indians' star pitcher, was due to arrive in training camp today, leaving but one hurler, Holdout Willis Hudlin, unreported.

Meanwhile Manager Oscar Vitt allowed the pitchers and rookie infielders already on deck to go through a bit more rigorous exercise than they have in the past two days. He also discussed a proposed shakeup in the batting order.

Earl Averill, Vitt said, would be good in the fifth spot, instead of Julius Solters. Earl has been batting third since he joined the Tribe back in the dark ages. Vitt said he wanted a fast, left-handed hitter for fifth.

THE United States commerce department gives Hollywood something more to worry about in the announcement that foreign motion picture studios turned out 1,809 film in 1937 as against 1,400 in 1936. Time was when foreign made films provided no competition to the American market, but in recent years the English studios have been turning out pictures that have as wide an appeal here as they do in England, for instance, "The Ghost Goes West," "Knight Without Armor," "Elephant Boy," all of the Korda pictures and those starring Charles Laughton and George Arliss. "Mayerling," a current hit, is so popular that it is bringing people from the "sticks" to the cities where it is being shown, and "Peter The Great" is popular. English trade papers have resented tremendously the fact that their pictures did not appeal to American audiences, but they are slowly making gains both in appeal and box office.

Lady and Her Butler.

Probably there never was a butler like William Powell outside the movies, but for entertainment purposes he undoubtedly will be much more satisfactory than the genuine article. But then he is a different kind of butler in "The Baroness and The Butler," which the Ohio offers the last half of the week, because he is the kind that gets himself elected to Parliament. The story (which served as a popular stage vehicle in Europe) is a nice combination of a New Deal in sociology and smart, scintillating dialogue. Opposite Powell is Annabella, the little French star who has been playing in English pictures and who makes her American movie debut in this picture. Needless to say she plays the baroness who is no end upset when her perfect butler is elected to represent her in the law making body.

Hoppy To The Rescue.

Hopalong Cassidy finds plenty to engage his wits and guns in "Cassidy of Bar 20," latest adventure to befall the redoubtable cowhand of the movies, which the Madison offers the last three days of the week, starting Thursday. Hoppy races to the defense of his sweetheart this time, who is beleagured on her ranch by cattle rustlers who are determined to force her out of business and out of the country. He sends Lucky back for reinforcements and when they arrive there is action around the old Spanish mission in which the rustlers have fortified themselves. Bill Boyd, as Hoppy, is supported by Nora Lane.

Stirring Love Story.

Guy Bolton's play, "The Dark Angel," must be good, for it was very successful as a stage play and twice it has been made into pictures that were far above the average. The first picture was a silent, with the lovely and unforgetable Vilma Banky, while the second one was made a year or so ago with Merle Oberon in the role Miss Banky had in the original film. Fredric March and Herbert Marshall are the two men in the talkie version which is being shown at the Majestic this week. It runs through Thursday. The story is one that is remembered long after other pictures are forgotten; for its tender love story and its beautiful photographic shots. The Majestic bill is rounded out with "Annie Oakley," starring Barbara Stanwyck.

Comedy at Ritz.

Packed with crackling merriment, romance, Gershwin music and the dancing of Fred Astaire, "Damsel in Distress," Ritz offering today and Thursday, is a potpourri of the things that make for light screen entertainment. George Burns and Gracie Allen add their own distinctive comedy while Joan Fontaine, sister of Olivia de Havilland, provides romance and pulchritude. Ray Noble's orchestra has a featured spot in this Astaire picture. The bill is rounded out with another comedy, "The Perfect Specimen," in which Joan Blondel teaches Errol Flynn a thing or three about life.

ASKS DISMISSAL

City Files Demurrer in Answer to Woman's Suit for $2,500.

A demurrer asking dismissal of a $2,500 damage suit against the city of Mansfield had been filed today in common pleas court by City Solicitor Marion D. Ward, jr., on the grounds that statements in the petition do not constitute sufficient cause for action.

The suit was brought by Mrs Mary Lutton, 118 Orange street, who contends she suffered serious injuries in a fall last March when she caught her foot in a hole in the sidewalk along East Fifth street.

The Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Devotion

By DR. WILLARD L. SPERRY

Ash Wednesday, March 2.

"We shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is." Read I John 3:1-3.

A Christian is a person who is Christlike. No one can quarrel with this description.

The meshes of our theological nets are too coarse to catch the free winds of his spirit. On the other hand, how often do we find ourselves saying of some act which we have just seen, "That was a Christian thing to do." The quality of the deed, and the way it was done, suggest Jesus. Lincoln, giving the Southern cavalrymen back their horses for the spring ploughing in '65, Father Damien working among the lepers on Molokai, John Hay returning the Boxes indemnity, Edith Cavell's last words about patriotism,—all these were Christian.

Why, then, are there so many patently unChristlike Christians? Such persons are a commonplace, a puzzle, and a scandal. They probably have mistaken ideas as to the sort of person Jesus was. Surely the beginning of all Christianity is an initial willingness to let Jesus be himself.

Prayer: Teach us, O God, that where there is no vision the people perish and grant to us, who have named the name of Christ as our best name, clearness of spiritual sight that we may see him as he is. Amen.

TRADERS AWAIT ICC VERDICT ON FREIGHT RATES

Wall Street Also Watches For Definite Hints of Business Upturn.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Most stocks took a slight downward slant today as the market prolonged its indecisive drift in a narrow course.

Traders continued to restrict operations while they waited for the ICC decision on a freight rate boost and definite hints of a business turn toward recovery.

Other leading markets also stayed in a rut. Most commodities held to a fairly even line. Bonds were narrow and quiet.

Wall Street analysts scanned business news for signs of a spring upturn.

The "Iron Age" noted steel manufacturers were finding indications of improvement, although new orders have not increased sufficiently to expand the industry's operations.

A sharp spring rise in motor production, analysts held, would be necessary to pull most producers back to profit-making levels.

Electric power output for the week ended last Saturday pointed to little actual change in the business pace.

JOIN IN U. S. USED CAR WEEK

Mansfield Auto Dealers Plan For Campaign Opening In Nation Saturday.

Mansfield auto dealers will join with dealers throughout the nation in National Used Car Exchange week, according to plans made yesterday at a meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

The one-week campaign, designed to stimulate used car sales and start the wheels of recovery in motion, starts Saturday, March 5 and continue through March 12.

R. E. Moorhead, president of the Richland County Auto Dealers association, named a committee of R. B. Gardner, chairman; A. L. Colby, Weston Cutter and Peter Weidner, to arrange for the campaign in this county.

Moorhead told the group that 43 per cent of the nation's business emanates from the auto industry and, the material used in it, and that one of the basic steps in business recovery is stimulation of auto sales.

Gardner said that a parade of used cars will be staged either Saturday or Monday afternoon. Dealers will take their new cars off the sales floors and replace them with used cars while outdoor lots will be made ready for use next week if the weather permits.

An effort in being made to have the state Bureau of Motor Vehicles set forward by five days the time for displaying 1938 license tags, so that persons buying used cars next week will not have to tranfer their licenses twice within the month, the dealers said eliminated the city now had the opportunity to go outside the corporation limits for an experienced sewage plant engineer, if the need should arise in the future.

Another change added the duties of assistant operator to that of record clerk at the plant, with a pay boost of $300 annually, raising the salary of the record clerk to $1,500 a year.

The legislation renews an ordinance creating the sewage plant positions and fixing the salaries of employes, another authorizes the employment of a plant technician and a third calls for the transfer of $1,500 to pay the salary of the technical supervisor. The measures were given first and second readings in two special sessions in the past two weeks.

The legislation in effect approved the mayor's appointment of J. R. Turner as head of the sewage plant at the salary of $2,500 a year, and authorized Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert to employ a plant technician on a part-time basis at $1,500 for the next year, after which Turner will be required to pass an examination before the state board of health.

The sewage plant controversy dates back to the appointment by Mayor Hunter of Turner as sewage plant engineer to replace J. P. Sotherland who resigned Feb. 5 at the mayor's request. The state health department had recommended employment of an experienced sewage plant engineer, setting up requirements which neither Sotherland, who held the job for nearly a year, nor Turner could fulfill.

The health board agreed, however, to the appointment of Turner if council provided technical supervision at the plant.

LET CONTRACTS FOR $10,000 IN CITY SUPPLIES

Board Members Decide On Low Bids In 3 Cases, Award 3rd Highest In Other.

The city board of control today announced that it had awarded four contracts totaling more than $10,000 for additional supplies to be used by the city this year.

Largest of the contracts went to the Hughes supply company of Mansfield, lowest of seven bidders, for supplying the city with water meters, service boxes and copper tubing at a base bid of $4,369.

The contract calls for delivery to the city of 400 water meters at $6.80 per unit, 400 service boxes at 93¾ cents per unit and 2,000 feet of copper tubing at 13¾ cents per foot.

Second largest contract was awarded the James B. Clow company, Coshocton, for pipe to be used in extending the city's water lines on the low bid of $3,854.

Includes Pipe, Fittings.

The Clow company, one of the three who entered bids, was $129 lower than its closest competitor the Central Foundry company, whose base bid was $3,983. Their contract calls for the delivery to the city of 3,600 linear feet of pipe ranging from four to eight inches in diameter and for four tons of fittings.

The Standard Sanitary Manufacturing company of Mansfield with a low bid of $691.25 was awarded the contract for supplying the water department with 23 gate valves. Their bid was $8.68 lower than the Hughes supply company.

The contract for four new fire hydrants was awarded to the Darling Valve Manufacturing company of Williamsport, Pa., on a third high bid of $1,689.28. This contract provides for delivery of four hydrants at the unit price of $422.32. While other proposals entered were lower than the Darling company's bid, Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert explained that because 75 per cent of the hydrants now used by the city were of that particular make, the Darling hydrant was selected to keep the equipment uniform.

He said that Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger had pointed out that the Darling hydrant was more serviceable and that maintenance costs were lower than on the other types.

WINS $11,300 TAX JUDGMENT

County Gets Award In Suit Against Site of Former Manufacturing Firm.

County Treasurer John E. Kolb today had been awarded a foreclosure judgment for $11,368 in delinquent taxes and penalties against the property of the Browning Manufacturing company of Mansfield.

The court order was awarded by Judge C. H. Huston in common pleas court against S. H. Squire, state superintendent of banks in charge of liquidation of the defunct Union Trust company, Cleveland. The order provides for sale of the property if the judgment is not paid in three days.

Appraisal of the property, which is in three tracts along the Erie tracks in the northeastern part of the city, was asked today by Atty. Marshall C. Moore, representing the county in its delinquent tax drive.

Title to the property has been held by the Union Trust company since 1925 when the bank obtained the land in a foreclosure sale against the estate of Benjamin F. Miles.

In awarding the tax judgment the court noted a lien of $14,198 against the property as the balance due on notes held by the Union Trust company.

CHAPTER VII

"What are you muttering about?" Murray wanted to know. "Been eating loco weed, or something?"

"Oh," said Mercedes airily, "I was just . . . just doing a little comparing."

"Yeah? Between me and who else?" Personally I think your mind isn't all that it should be."

"Maybe that's true," assented the girl. "Like your heart."

"But—the comparison?" said Murray, manlike, scenting rivalry even for the approval of a girl whom he didn't love, who was just a good pal.

"Oh, somebody," replied Mercedes. "Just a guest we happen to have at La Luz. A beautiful man, primo mio. Absolutely beautiful."

"What!" Murray was annoyed. A beautiful man. A beautiful man. "Hell's bells, Mercedes . . . and you say he is a guest here?"

"Oh, yes. He has been here now—let me see—" she consulted her wrist watch—"three days, four hours and twenty minutes."

Oh, he has! Precisely three days, four hours, twenty minutes.

What—no seconds?"

"I—I was so—so excited I forgot to count the seconds," the girl replied. "But you shall see him. You shall see him at once. And then you will understand."

"I betcha," said Murray, Joselike. "By damn, I betcha."

They had reached the arcade now, and the broad steps that led from it to the great entrance door, which opened upon a broad hallway running completely through the house to the big patio at the rear. As they set foot on steps, an elderly figure appeared in the doorway. A huge man, with white hair and beard. An old man, but one who held himself as straight as one of his own eucalyptus trees, and whose eyes were undimmed by the sorrows and pleasures of the years.

"Don Vicente!" exclaimed Murray, and sprang up the steps to clasp the hand held out to him.

"Welcome back to La Luz," said Don Vicente Torres.

* * *

The Senorita Mercedes left the two men together, and they seated themselves in comfortable armchairs on the veranda. Some little time passed in exchange of courtesies, in Murray's narration of the death of Tom Castle and his present duty to discover Tom Castle's daughter, and in his tale of conflict with Red Vasquez at the Cafe Mexico City.

At this last, Don Vicente shook his old head gravely.

"Bad medicine, son," he said. "Not that one man should be afraid of another. But . . . Vasquez is not one man; he is a dozen, a score. All of them bad—or worse than bad. You must be careful, son. Things around here aren't what they used to be. We have organized crime just like you have north of the Line. And recently—" The old don paused as if to discontinue this line of talk, but presently went on. "Recently I've been suffering from it. Cattle are being stolen. Even some fine horses. An automobile. Sent across the line, no doubt. We are no longer safe."

"And you think that Red Vasquez' gang is responsible, sir?"

"Usually," replied Don Vicente, "there's only one gang in any given district. So. . . ."

Thus the talk ran until at last Don Vicente yawned, rose and went to take a siesta. "When I was your age," he explained, smiling, "I never took a siesta, even at midday. Now I find three of them very agreeable. We will talk more later."

So Murray Kilbourne sent a boy for a horse and started forth on a leisurely journey about the rancho, rather expecting to come upon his cousin Mercedes somewhere. He knew that she was an inveterate rider. She never walked if riding were possible, and being the expert horsewoman she was, there were few things impossible to her. Wherever a horse could go, there she went in saddle.

But it was not Mercedes whom he encountered first.

* * *

About half a mile east of the hacienda rose a chain of rugged and precipitous hills, broken by a pass through which a stream ventured, and where heavy woods grew. A favorite spot for picnicking, Murray knew. And a very good objective for a ride.

So thither he went, riding easily, in no hurry. And turning one of the hills, just at the edge of the little forest, he saw a mounted man talking with one who stood at his stirrup, hat in hand, deferential, head inclined, listening to the other's speech.

At the sound of Murray's horse, both looked up quickly. There was a swift word from the rider. The man on foot nodded and started to walk away—toward the trees. But the rider touched his horse with his spur, and came slowly toward Murray.

"This," said the American to himself, "is unquestionably the beautiful gentleman whom Mercedes babbled about. Hmph! he rides well, at least. And his riding clothes weren't made in Tijuana. But just why are beautiful gentlemen startled when some one comes unexpectedly upon them conversing with a peon?"

He looked beyond the approaching horseman, toward the departing Mexican, and saw that this man now had turned and was watching them. But as Murray looked, the man resumed his way, and disappeared among the trees.

The horseman reined in alongside of the American, proffered a gloved hand.

"This man must be Don Murray Kilbourne," he said, in a voice too melodious, Murray thought, for a man. Might be a bloomin' crooner, Murray told himself, but he accepted the offered hand.

"Yes," said Murray. "I am Murray Kilbourne, at your service, senor."

* * *

The two horses snuffed at each other's noses, and the two men sniffed at each other with their eyes—and both knew that neither one of them would ever be at the other's service—Spanish courtesy to the contrary notwithstanding. Murray Kilbourne could not have said why he disliked Don Ponce Robles. He did not realize that it was mostly because Mercedes had called him a beautiful gentleman.

Leaving the Don Poce Robles to continue his way around the hacienda, Murray jogged along, admiring the scenery but with an unpleasant taste in his mouth, and not entirely pleasant thoughts in his head.

He did not like this Don Ponce Robles. Not at all. Nix. But at the same time—so his thoughts ran—this Don Ponce Robles must be somebody, must have unimpeachable credentials, to be the house guest of Don Vicente Torres, the old patrician. Well, even so, one is not forced to like a man on account of his credentials. And this dislike promised to be mutual. Oh well. . . . But a beautiful gentleman!

Into his thoughts broke the Senorita Mercedes, riding like a whirlwind and lifting her horse over a four-foot fence. Sliding to a halt beside him, her mount's hindquarters in the dust. A girl flushed with fast riding, but breathing easily, her sombrero askew, her eyes dancing.

'So you saw my beautiful gentleman, Murray," she said. "I observed the meeting from the hills. How do you think of him?"

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD

Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat hearty, greasy, sweets or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or sleep poorly—your stomach pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, sclerosis, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.

Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for Indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in 5 minutes and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion.

One swing band leader is quoted as saying his hobby is music—but he seems to have little time for it.

Mr. Farley plans to "put it down in writing"—which is more than some politicians would be willing to do.

Animal tribes in their economic and political systems are more rational than men; when they can't agree, they divide their territory and keep away from each other.

Why Repeal the Sales Tax?

WE GET used to strange things in this day and age, but the sight of an organization of taxpayers ostensibly opposing a reduction in taxes may cause a bit of head-scratching, unless given some serious thought.

Yesterday came the announcement that the Mansfield City Teacher's association was opposing current efforts to do away with the retail sales tax. Certainly, school teachers are taxpayers, which might make it seem strange for a moment.

But the explanation is an obvious one. Money derived from the sales tax helps to operate the schools—contributes more than a third of the total income of the city school system.

It isn't likely that anyone really likes the sales tax, school teachers included, and the first reaction of the average person to a move to do away with an unpopular tax might be favorable.

Grant that the sales tax isn't popular—but remember that if it is repealed there'll either be another tax to take its place or there won't be schools, at least not of the present calibre.

It would be well also to remember the financial difficulties in which most communities are finding themselves as a result of the approval, a few years ago, of the reduction in the maximum tax rate on real estate from 15 mills to 10. That was going to lower taxes. Well, whether it did is questionable. It did result in a different distribution of tax receipts. And one result of that is the sharp reduction in the county's funds for road repair. So the chap who mutters and mumbles about rough county roads might try to remember whether he voted to cut the tax limit from 15 mills to 10, and figure out what effect that had on road funds.

And then he might go on and think about what the saving of sales tax pennies would do to his city's school system, and to his city government as well.

Taxes never are pleasant. New ones seem to be more unpleasant than the old ones. And if something else in the way of taxes comes along to replace the sales tax, in the event of its repeal, it'll probably be more unpleasant yet.

It would be grand to repeal taxes—if we could get along without them. Let the repealers figure out how to do that and they'll be national heroes.

Old-Fashioned Behavior.

THEY were mostly old fogies, no doubt, 200 years ago. Still, they had some virtues that we lack, and perhaps some knowledge that we have forgotten. Here are a few rules of conduct, for instance, that were current in those days:

"Every action done in company ought to be with some sign of respect to those who are present."

"Sleep not when others speak, sit not when others stand, speak not when you should hold your peace, walk not when others stop."

"At play and at fire it's good manners to give place to the last comer and affect to speak not louder than ordinary."

"Let your discourse with men of business be short and comprehensive."

"Undertake not to teach your equal in the art he himself professes."

"Associate yourself with men of good quality if you esteem your own reputation; for 'tis better to be alone than in bad company."

These and many similar bits of good advice are taken from a collection of "Rules of Civility and Decent Behavior in Company and Conversation" compiled by the Rev. James Marye of Fredericksburg, Va. Young people today may smile at them superiorly, but they seem to have worked then, and might work now. Anyway, a pupil of Mr. Marye's named George Washington copied them in a notebook learned them and practised them, and he got along all right.

True History.

THE John Dewey Society, named for our foremost American philosopher and educator, and representing his liberal spirit, complains that academic freedom is imposed on by "pressure groups" which want to get their special doctrines into the schools. The society considers this one of the most vital issues of the day.

Its 1938 year book says teachers have been reprimanded and "even dismissed from their jobs for teaching accepted facts about history, science and civics which were disagreeable to certain groups in their communities." Prominent historians have been forced to rewrite some passages in their books, and omit others, says the society, not because they were untrue but because they did not agree with social prejudices.

If this is so, it is a bad situation. The motto of American education is, or ought to be, "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

It is always possible in such matters to ask with Pilate, "What is truth?" But surely it is better to leave the training of youthful minds to the best judgment of educational experts, with no self-interest to serve, than to the prejudices of inexpert "pressure groups."

German Holidays.

LIFE in Germany seems to be one round of Nazi anniversaries, mostly of steps in Hitler's career. There are the anniversary of his first "putsch," the anniversary of his achievement of the chancellorship, and so on. The latest was the eighteenth anniversary of the adoption of the Nazi party platform.

We don't begrudge any nation a lot of holidays, but these German anniversaries wouldn't appeal to us. They give Hitler too many excuses to talk.

McIntyre's New York Glimpses

—By O. O. McINTYRE

NOT all the fine old simplicities vanish in the modern whirl. I have visited a half dozen homes, where with heads bowed, grace is said before the meal is served. Quite a number of established families cling to the formal calls on New Years day afternoons.

Chic Sale, was, when migrating to Hollywood, able instantly to find a buyer for his home at Scarsdale because it had an old-time cistern in the back yard and a grindstone in the front. Homer Croy will rent almost any house that has scrapers on the porch steps.

I am told—although I have not seen them—that the urbane Frank Crowninshield wears ear muffs with the brass slip rod in the back on especially nippy nights. And one of the first-cabin haberdashers in the 50's tells me he has several sub rosa red flannel underwear patrons.

Two years ago I was a guest in one of those mellow Murray Hill homes which features a Bible reading twice weekly—Wednesday and Sunday nights. Dinner there is always served by candlelight. The host and hostess are not antiquarians. They merely find sentimental warmth in touches of long ago.

Few criminals are recruited from the vaudeville stage, police records show. A notable exception was the confidence fellow, Dapper Dan Collins, once a trick cyclist. Indeed show folk are surprisingly missing in prisons. Those incarcerated are almost invariably there for some crime passionelle instead of crimes inspired by studied intent. Also there is astonishingly lack of alcohol addiction among stage people, considering the tension of their lives. But drug habits are on the increase, due largely to careless doctors who try to buoy players over the trail of long rehearsals with narcotics.

In sorting old papers today I came upon a meaningless tangle of penciled lines that recalled my first and last experience in attending an art class sketching in the nude. My cicerone was Bob Brinkerhoff, a bona fide student at a studio on one of the Montmartre peaks. He accomplished my deception by introducing me as a fellow artist. And so I sat at an old fashioned school desk and pretended to be drawing but really scared stiff that the long-bearded professor in charge might pass and glance at my efforts. I have a fleeting impression of an emaciated looking girl throwing a blanket about her after a few moments and rushing from the room. One more thing, too: How impersonal and businesslike it was.

Increasing rumors that near-by Connecticut may at last have a state income tax is furrowing the brows of many New Yorkers who moved over the line when the New York State tax gouge got completely out of bounds. Greenwich, especially, and its environs have been a veritable paradise for those with investment incomes and nothing particular to do. Land values thereabouts have been booming, some almost lost acres selling for as high as $1,000 each.

If the rumors are true, Jimmy Walker has a choice of a number of high salaried jobs. Among them a whopping radio commentator post, the presidency of a major league ball club and a sort of Judge Landis type of office supervising boxing. In the meantime his wife, the former Betty Compton, has launched her flower shop on the fringe of the Gold Coast and the town turned in a gala day welcome. And all the gloomy "What is to become of the Walkers?" prophecies of a year ago seem so much tosh. Jimmy still has a personal magnetism that charms the proletariat. Whenever he enters a public restaurant there is that sudden rustle and ensuing momentary silence that is the accolade for celebrity.

To this I will subscribe: He is the most engaging fellow the metropolis has ever built up. Often when he has come into public places I have tried to express a chill of indifference but wind up whistling through my teeth.

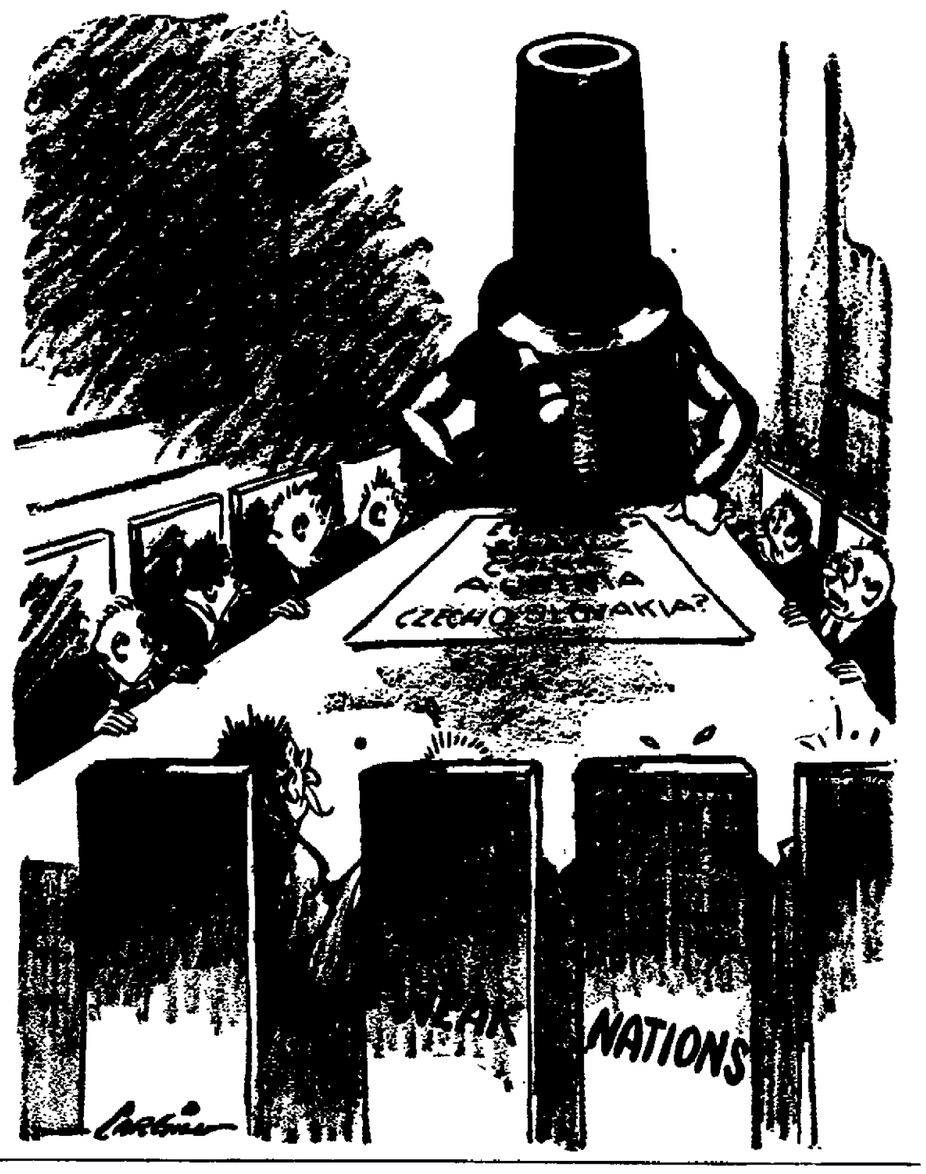
Do not be without great thoughts
Master minds have set
On the printed page; with them,
In the stress and fret,

Pause an hour or half of it
Read one of the best
Of great writers, old or new,
With an added zest

You will find that you go back
To your busy day,
Better for this small time you
Took to store away

Great thoughts; much that hour will leave
With you as you go,
Rest, refreshment, and the power
They can give you'll know.

"THE IRON CHANCELLOR"



Fascism In Latin America—How Far Has It Gone?

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Notwithstanding President Roosevelt's felicitous note to President Robert M. Ortiz of Argentina upon the occasion of the latter's recent inauguration in Buenos Aires there is a good bit of wondering in Washington's government circles concerning the progress which nazification or fascistification may or may not be making in the socalled republics south of the Caribbean.

The flight of a fleet of Uncle Sam's bombing planes to the Argentine capital, to attend the Ortiz inaugural ceremonies, was a very nice gesture. The president could not have expressed himself more gracefully than he did in his message, which Commander Robert Olds of the flying squadron took with him, to the incoming president.

All the same, when "F. D." refers to "two republics (Argentina and the U. S. A.) nurtured with similar ideals"?—well, in the circumstances, perhaps one justifiably may ask, "Are their ideals still similar?"

* * *

ATTITUDE PRAISED

This is not in the least to find fault with the Rooseveltian attitude toward the Latin Americans.

The president and Secretary of State Hull have pursued exactly the right course to popularize the United States with our southern brethren. They not only have taken a friendly tone in all conversations with them; they have been quite elaborately polite. And there is no nourishment that the Latin American likes better than an almost excess of politeness in dealing with him. He nearly prefers polite crockedness to brusqueness, however, "on the level". We used to be brusque. It got us disliked. The Roosevelt administration has been "on the level" and exaggeratedly polite likewise. All honor to that sort of intelligence.

Nevertheless, is South America becoming Nazified or Fascistificated?

It is a pertinent question, in view of the facts that Germany, Italy and Ja_n have large populations on the southern continent, that each group remains very close to its original home land (they have not assimilated, as we have assimilated immigrants in this country), and that their home governments are reputed to be trying to intrench on our side of the oceans.

A Nazified, Fascisticated South America would be disagreeable.

* * *

CORRESPONDENT EXPELLED

Not so long ago I had occasion to report that Argentina has issued an expulsion order against John W. White, chief South American correspondent of the New York Times, with headquarters in Buenos Aires.

The story was that John, an old friend of mine and more than a 20-year resident of South America (initially in the consular service), had referred to President Vargas of Brazil as a dictator, that Vargas had complained to Argentina, and that the Argentine government had agreed to deport him, as an undesirable alien.

It seemed queer that Argentina had been so resentful of a jab at the Brazilian president.

But that was not quite all of it.

* * *

WHY HE WAS GAGGED

What White really said was that no South American country, with the single exception of Colombia, tolerates an honest election.

That, of course, got Argentina's goat, equally with Brazil's.

John was not actually "expulsed". He still is allowed to live in Argentina. But he cannot file dispatches. What good it does him to stay, as newspaperman, bottled up tight, I can't imagine. Habit, maybe.

But isn't it queer to think of a country, trying to prove how liberal it is by denying the right of expression to a news commentator?

I am prepared to believe that White would be welcome in Colombia; not elsewhere south of the Caribbean. He is, undoubtedly, the best-informed North American in the world concerning South American conditions.

If he says that South American elections are a farce, barring Colombia, I believe it.

And I am not otherwise convinced by his muzzling.

Let us see whether there is an improvement, at least in Argentina, under the regime of President Ortiz.

Why Does 'Nothing Succeed Like Success'?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THERE'S an old adage which burns Al Wilson up. To-wit:

"NOTHING SUCCEEDS LIKE SUCCESS."

"Is that fair?" boils Al. "Why should people who have everything already, be given more? Take yourself, for example, or any columnist. You people get things printed in all kinds of places without any trouble, yet I can't get a single story accepted, although everyone says it's swell stuff. I wrote this story five years ago. I've sent it to every editor in America since and they won't even look at it. I can prove that because I pasted two pages together and they were never opened. But you slobs get fat checks for everything you write."

* * *

YES, it's an actual letter. Sounds a little heated, doesn't it? Yet actually, it represents the average citizen's attitude toward the irritating maxim—"NOTHING SUCCEEDS LIKE SUCCESS." Down the street, in the sleekest, swiftest imported Italian model, rolls the Big Shot. At ten that Big Shot was a ragged urchin selling papers on the corner. Today he flips away three grand with more ease than you or I spend a dime. "Is that fair?" says we and Al, greeneyed, thinking of our own unrewarded labors.

Yes—strange as it may seem, it is fair.

"Nothing DOES succeed like success"..."Unto him that hath, shall be given, and he shall have abundance."

Maddening as such maxims sound, they're both true and just. And it isn't because God plays favorites...it's simply because success, in itself, is a proof of what you have and what you deserve.

* * *

There are, of course, seeming exceptions. People who appear to get everything without trying. Lucky breaks. But such exceptions do not demonstrate real or lasting success. The luck that's handed to you is just scenery. As unreal as a Hollywood "flat"—and as unsatisfactory. It gives no lasting power, no heart-deep happiness. The only success that you can bank on—the only success that succeeds—is the luck you make for yourself.

Why does that success succeed? Why, for example, do editors clamor for a successful columnist's articles—and turn down the amateur's? It's not because the columnist can flash a bank roll...it's because he's taken a beating...he's been through the mill...he's had the conceit and laziness and nutty notions pounded out of him—and he can now be trusted to produce the goods.

REAL SUCCESS IS A LOGICAL CONSEQUENCE, NOT A LUCKY ACCIDENT.

Real success doesn't mean selling stories or insurance or bonds or dry goods. It means all the discipline that goes before and with such sales...the disappointments and humiliations, the double-crossings and dirty deals...and the ability to take all this and yet fight on without bitterness or pouts.

WHY DOES NOTHING SUCCEED LIKE SUCCESS? WHY DOES "HE WHO HATH" GET MORE GIVEN UNTO HIM? That's why. Because genuine success is a 100 per cent proof of a survival of the spunkiest.

* * *

Referring again to "us slobs," no successful writer ever wrote one story in five years and then sat crying in Mama's lap while it was being refused. He realized, to begin with, that no first story was ever worth the paper it covered—and that any editor would discover the fact in two paragraphs without wading through to those "pasted pages."

And he'd go plugging along, regardless of rejections, until he either reached the goal or got hep to the fact that, as an author, he was a good ditch-digger.

Nothing succeeds like success—Because—

NO ONE SUCCEEDS LIKE THE GUY WHO CAN TAKE IT.

Let's Look Around

Seeing Louisville When There's No Derby.

—By G. J. KOCHENDERFER

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—Here in Kentucky's largest city, with a population around 350,000, is found the answer to the question that has long puzzled many people: "What does Louisville do on the other 364 days of the year, after the derby is over?"

Louisville and the famous horse racing classic known as the "derby" have been so closely linked in the minds of people all over the country that it is hard to realize that, aside from its year-round emphasis on thoroughbred horses, this is an entirely normal sort of American city with diversified industries, fine residential and business sections and one of the best kept park systems to be found anywhere in the country.

* * *

CHURCHILL DOWNS, where the derby is held on a Saturday afternoon in May each year, contrasts strongly today with the scene presented on the afternoon of the big race when the vast expanse of stands is filled to capacity and other thousands fight their way to standing room in the hope of at least catching a glimpse of the horses.

Now the stands are empty, there is quiet around the several score of betting windows which, on derby day, will be crowded by a multitude of persons eager to place wagers on their favorite horses.

Just as Louisville honors its great men by erecting monuments to them, so does it also memorialize its great horses by adding each year to the honor roll of derby winners, the name of each appearing above the facades of various buildings at Churchill Downs, extending back through the more than a half century of derby history.

* * *

And, by the way, they make it quite clear down here that the proper pronunciation is dErby, and that it is only over the radio that you'll sometimes hear it pronounced dArby.

* * *

While the actual running of the derby takes only a few minutes on that momentous Saturday afternoon in May, there is scarcely a moment throughout the year that Louisville residents are not derby-conscious, or that the sport pages of the well-known Courier-Journal do not emphasize the subject—for horses and horse racing, it should be kept in mind, not only occupy a high place in Kentucky sports circles but betting on races serves as a quite important factor in the redistribution of wealth.

* * *

CONFIDENTLY asserting that fully one-third of the world's tobacco crop is raised in Kentucky, and with Louisville among the largest markets for this commodity, it can also be understood why much of the conversation of Kentuckians turns toward tobacco-growing and consideration of methods of soil conservation so that the desire for a "money crop" will not wear out the soil.

For the past eight or nine years Kentucky farmers have been paying increasing attention to the possibilities of using Korean lespedeza for crop rotation and to enrich soil that had been overworked by successive tobacco crops.

It is said of this grass that it is of heavy growth, crowds out weeds, is suitable for either grazing or cutting, prevents erosion, is an excellent soil builder and feeds needed oxygen back into the ground. Experiments with lespedeza have also been successfully extended into southern Indiana.

* * *

CONTINUING on the subject of agriculture, because of the importance of farming interests in Richland county and consequent direct benefits to Mansfield, a movement has just been started in Kentucky which promises to greatly stimulate the interest of farmers in increasing efficiency of farm operations and in the improvement of farm homes. Cash prizes totaling several thousand dollars, and running as high as $500 for the farmer making the best record, are being offered.

Kentucky appears to recognize the importance of farming and takes its agricultural program very seriously.

* * *

THEN there is politics. Kentucky is all stirred up just now about the rivalry between present-Senator Alben W. Barkley and Governor Albert B. Chandler for the Democratic nomination for senator this year.

Senator Barkley, who stands high with President Roosevelt, has announced his candidacy for a third term. Governor Chandler is completing his term of four years as governor and, under Kentucky law, cannot be a candidate to succeed himself. He has been a very satisfactory governor and the belief is quite general that he would make an excellent senator—were it not for the fact that Mr. Barkley is also very well liked and is a marvelous campaigner.

From the looks of things Kentucky appears to be back to the point of quite regularly electing the Democratic nominee for governor and senator—which makes the race for the senate nomination particularly interesting.

It may also be noted that Kentucky folks are thoroughly sold to the idea of a four-year term for governor and barring him from a second term. They believe that this rule results in more efficient service and prevents inclination to play politics while in office.

* * *

ONE IDEA in starting out for a drive and to take a look around was to move in the general direction of approaching spring. There's a touch of it in Louisville, but let's be moving along.

Keeping Step

New Ideas Needed to Spur Business

—By LESLIE EICHEL

SOME APPREHENSION is felt among businessmen that the predicted summer upturn may not be so extensive as had been forecast.

Many industries will be considered lucky if they operate at half their capacity. Great Lakes' shipping is such an industry. There is enough iron ore on storage docks to keep steel mills supplied half a year at double their present capacity. As a result, the best that can be expected of Great Lakes' shipping will be half the tonnage hauled that was hauled last year. And the season will be short—merely through the summer.

* * *

NEW IDEAS NEEDED

Businesses, however, that originate new salable ideas may have to double their capacity.

It is an axiom that ideas which sweep the country develop during a depression—and build great new industries.

Companies with idle equipment could well afford to spend a fortune on idea men.

But idea men cannot be developed except through training and aid during a depression, as well as before and after.

* * *

NO DEPRESSION HERE

For example, Walt Disney has no depression. His first full-length film, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," is the biggest money-maker in years.

Yet it took courage to make "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." It took courage to borrow the $1,500,000 necessary to finance its manufacture.

But, above all, it took vision.

Few industries — or governments—have men of vision.

* * *

UNEMPLOYMENT HIGHER

If the unemployment census were taken now, the figures would prove even more discouraging.

John D. Biggers, who directed the taking of the census, tells President Roosevelt we are "scraping bottom."

How does he know? No one really knows that he knows. Capital still seems flowing out of the United States, but in smaller amounts. Maybe we are beginning to scrape bottom.

Biggers is a successful industrialist. He seems to have no remedy at the moment except that the government must spend to give workers money with which to buy.

Many industrialists are swinging away from the "balance-the-budget" die-hards. To balance the budget at the moment—if that were possible—might throw many corporations into receivers' hands, and bring an uprising to boot.

* * *

SOUTHERN WAGES

The wage and hour bill is not dead. It is not dead because northern industrialists are beginning to believe they cannot exist without it.

Wages again have sunk to unbelievably low levels in many parts of the south. Sweatshop-manufactured goods not only are making a ruinous price structure but are cutting purchasing power dangerously. Pay in some southern mills ranges from $5.14 to $9.73 a week, according to evidence gathered by one writer.

* * *

NAVY BUILDING

Much has been said how the enlarged navy building program will provide work for many men.

Shipyard corporations are not so sanguine. The government moves slowly. Money is wasted through red-tape. The hundreds of millions probably will be pouring into warships by the time all the world will be at peace.

And financial circles believe there is a definite trend toward peace. If Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy would enter into agreements, and Germany and Italy would get out of Spain, it is believed that there would be a tremendous upsurge in European business—and peace.

As for the other side of the world—the Japanese government is finding its war in China a difficult undertaking. It expected trouble from liberals, but was prepared to deal with them. The chief trouble, however, has arisen over Japanese industrialists and bankers. They see the war as confiscating their businesses and wealth.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

To Say Amen To.

To say amen to, conveying the thought of emphatic approval or full sanction is an interesting old phrase which has assumed almost colloquial aspects and which revolves about the word amen with which most are familiar because of its association with the Scriptures.

Amen stems straight from the Sanscrit through the Hebrew, Greek and Latin, preserving through all the centuries its first form and sense.

Because amen meant "truth," the ancient Hebrews used it at the end of prayers as an affirmation of the verity of what was said, and with the significance So be it.

Similarly, in Greek and Latin, as subsequently in English, amen came to connote "certainly, truly.", and, appended to the end of a creed, it imparted an additional and solemn asseveration of belief.

Stinchcomb, former Ohio State athlete who rose from an $85 a month liquor department employe to the presidency of the Franklin Warehousing Inc., bailment warehouse for state liquor stock.

At the same time Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy was pressing for a transcript of the investigating committee's evidence for study of possible action against several firms named during the inquiry as having especially benefited by state business. Included in these was the Hot Mix Bituminous Paving Industry, Inc., termed by former Senator James Metzenbaum, counsel for the committee, a monopoly.

Duffy Action Expected.

Duffy was expected to push an investigation of the companies and to make an early attempt to collect approximately $11,000 which the committee said was paid a Cleveland coal dealer in excess profits.

Ferguson ordered Stinchcomb and four other Franklin warehousing officials to appear at 10 a. m. today and bring the books of the firm. In a recent letter to the liquor control commission, the state auditor said future payments to the warehouse concern and the Cincinnati Terminal Warehouse, Inc., would be suspended when the contracts expired yesterday.

For the past several weeks Ferguson has been conducting an investigation of liquor shipments into the state and has invited federal alcohol tax unit agents to work with him. He charged that liquor was being brought from bordering states where prices are cheaper and sold to Ohio retailers.

Others Summoned.

The other Franklin warehousing officials ordered to appear were William Fetting, vice president and general manager; J. A. Stillwell, Fred Spangler and Howard Ross, employes.

Meanwhile, the house was believed to have definitely spiked any move to continue the session when it defeated 67-59 a motion to suspend the rules to permit consideration of a resolution by Rep. W. P. Van Ness (R) Champaign. The resolution would have set March 3 as the final working day of the legislature and March 28 as the date for sine die adjournment.

During bitter debate before the measure went down to defeat Floyd F. Mees (R) Meigs, refuted charges by Governor Davey that the senate investigating committee was "a Russian committee." Mees declared:

"As a rural member, I just want to make one observation. We have heard much about the investigating committee, some for the investigators from one angle and some opposed from another angle.

Not Russia.

"Now my observation is just this: I dislike the phrase used by the chief executive last night referring to this investigating committee as a 'Russian committee.' I thought this was America and I believe it is America. Let us do things in an American way and that is just the reason that this committee should be continued.

"Whether Democratic or Republican it matters not, but as true Americans, I say to you that I sincerely believe this so-called 'Russian committee' has done a good job and should be labeled a 'true American committee,' endeavoring to bring to light all irregularities—not from a Republican angle, not from a Democratic angle—but from the angle of preserving Ohio and American interests for all on a square and equal basis."

The house recessed shortly after killing the resolution until 1:30 p. m. today at which time it is expected to work on the pending unfinished business. No order to prorogue the legislature is expected from the governor unless the senate forces the issue by continuing the probe.

The senate re-enacted the Whittemore act allowing the payment of taxes and special assessments in installments and then recessed until today.

A Farmer's Diary

A WINDY day. Kites were sailing high. Papers whirled over treetops and houses. Eddying swirls of dust played along the dirt roads. Dried leaves, stubble and shifting weeds rode high across the field.

This evening I went out to prune some apple trees. The wind was not so strong, yet when it sifted through the many branches, it made a mighty roaring, whistling sound.

My saw was sharp and cut the sprouts close to the mother branch, without leaving rough edges. These clean-cut wounds will heal quickly. The sprouts were long and slender, and had no fruiting buds. They stand as excess luggage for the tree, so I take them out each year.

On the older branches I counted scars three, four, six, or even ten years back, where fruit was borne. I noticed, too, the years when drought had seared our land, or happier seasons of abundant rain had fallen.

With slow and calculating strokes, I cut some larger branches from the top and sides, that the sun might shine through better, and paint a brighter red upon the fruit; also that the fruit, thus unobstructed, would grow larger and have a finer flavor.

I am a hopeful farmer, possessed of faith and dreams of what the crop of ripened fruit will be when autumn comes.

Trial of Driver Charged With Intoxication, Continues.

The first of 23 witnesses took the stand in municipal court today to testify in the defense of Glenn E. Rose, 36, of 57 Howard street, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol, as the trial went into its second day.

The parade of witnesses began this morning after Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch had overruled a motion for dismissal, entered by the defense counsel, James V. Will, yesterday just before the court adjourned.

The prosecution rested its case following the testimony of four witnesses. The panel of 10 men and two women heard Lawrence R. Allison, 148 West Third street, driver for the Michigan Motor Freight company, Detroit, the prosecuting witness, tell of the accident on the night of Feb 15, when the truck he was driving figured in a collision with a machine driven by Rose on route 39, about one mile south of Shelby.

Other state witnesses were William G. Schwan, 81½ North Main street, the photographer, who took the pictures of the accident; Corporal Scott B. Radcliffe of the state highway patrol, and Dr. Herman Gunn of Ashland, who made an alcohol test of Rose's blood the night of the accident.

Council President Karl P. Troll appointed a special committee at last night's meeting to consider the renewal of a contract for furnishing fire protection to Madison township.

A two-year agreement that expires April 15 now calls for the payment of $2,000 annually to be paid the city in quarterly payments for answering all fire calls and rendering assistance in Madison township.

Those named to the committee were Councilmen C. N. Shultz, chairman, George C. Kyle and Fred Miller.

The street committee of council had before them today a petition from 16 property owners on Dale avenue seeking the repair of the roadway. It was pointed out in the petition that the street had been recently surfaced and that the roadway was badly in need of repair and because of the added assessment to the property owner, the taxpayers said they felt the city should make the necessary improvements.

COLUMBUS—Wellington T. Leonard, of Mansfield, a member of the state liquor board, said today he would ask that extra enforcement agents be assigned to checking the activities of wine blending companies which residents of the Northern Ohio grape country complained were not conforming with state regulations.

MEXICO, TAPESTRIES SUBJECTS OF PAPERS

Mrs. Courtney's Topic Gives Information on Art, Theater, Churches; Ancient Craft of Weaving Discussed by Mrs. H. D. Bishop.

MEXICO and tapestries were the subjects of the two papers presented before members of the Mansfield Sorosis yesterday at the meeting which was held at the Women's Club with Mrs. O. G. Place as hostess. In the absence of the president, Mrs. John Angle, Mrs. W. E. Wygant presided over the business meeting. At this time it was decided to give $4 to the high school and $1 to John Simpson junior high school as contributions to the lunch funds.

Mrs. A. E. Courtney prepared the paper, "Art, Theaters and Churches of Mexico" which was read by Miss Grace Courtney. She described the works of such famous painters as Murillo, Rubens, Titian and Francisco de Zurbaran which are to be found in Mexico even after all the destruction that has occurred.

National Museum.

Much of the important art was lost during the French occupation and the subsequent civil wars. However, some of the best selections are to be found at the national museum and the national academy of San Carlos. Here there are collections of pictures, ethenological, geological and zoological exhibits and other articles of antiquity.

Mexico is most out-standing for drawing, design, wood-carving and painting as well as the allied arts. In speaking of the theater Miss Courtney told of the architecture of the buildings, the types of performances, and the ancient theater.

Turning to churches she told that many of the churches were built as public monuments by men who had become rich in gold mining. The oldest church is Jesus Nazareno which was started by Cortez following his occupation.

Tapestries.

Mrs. H D. Bishop followed with a paper on "Famous Tapestries and Weavers." She pointed out that Europe is not the pioneer in tapestry work, but rather weaving is an art of the ages and that the East witnessed the birth of this art

The oldest known tapestry is a sheet woven in 1400 B. C. The apostle tapestry is one of the most famous and was woven in the 11th or 12th century. It is now valued at $250,000 although at one time it was purchased for $3.

Mrs. Bishop mentioned the Gobelin brothers and William Pannebaker, famous weavers of the middle ages, and exhibited a Chinese tapestry brought to America by her brother

Roll call was answered with conundrums. The next meeting will be March 15 at the Women's Club with Miss Bertha and Miss Sophie Ruess as hostesses.

ALL PROBLEM CHILDREN

"All children over two are problem children," recently declared Lady Nancy Astor, American-born member of the British parliament, according to report. "At that age each child begins to develop in a characteristic way, it becomes an individual, presenting its parents with the problem of how best to handle it so as to give that individual child the best start in life. After the eighteenth birthday children become 'untouchables.' Then it's hands off for the parents, the youngsters must work out their own problems for themselves."

News-Journal Page For Women

—Advice—

Readers Ask Miss Lee For Advice

By VIRGINIA LEE

WHAT IS the matter with the boys? They are all falling in love with older women.

Yesterday I had a puzzled letter from a fifty-year-old widow whose boy friend was 15 years her junior. Today I have written a personal letter to a boy who is in love with a married woman 12 years his senior.

Maybe it's the girls' fault. I get letters from girls saying they love older men and boys of their own age seem very silly to them. So possibly the boys feel the same way about the girls. Young and giggling girls are too immature and frivolous to share a man's serious responsibilities in these serious times.

It is not a new reaction. Most of the men in my family have married women from two to six years their elders. In fact, age doesn't seem to count when a man and a maid meet and decide they are just "meant for each other."

Nature plays a mean trick on young people at the mating age. The very fact that they wish to attract each other makes them tense, self-sconscious and not at all themselves. Girls try to be attractive and succeed in only impressing the boys that they are silly and self-sconscious.

Boys try to put their best feet foremost and give the maidens the idea that they are "smarties."

It is all very sad, but as a matter of fact, they all seem to get acquainted, attracted and mated in time, so we needn't worry too much about it.

The girls and boys themselves, do agonize over it to a considerable extent, however, I know, from talking with them.

* * *

Poor mothers, poor daughters! Loving each other dearly, it is just too sad the distance they grow apart and how they misunderstand each other. There is a girl who writes me about her mother's nagging. Mother says daughter gads. Daughter thinks she goes out very little and that her mother should be pleased to have her have a good time. She says her mother must be jealous of her because her (mother's) "best days are over." "Mothers are supposed to be their daughters' best friend," says the girl, "but mine certainly isn't."

Mothers and fathers usually are keen to have their daughters popular, and yet they can't help worrying about them and scolding when they stay out late or go too much.

When the children are small and "under foot," mothers and fathers often look at each other with astonishment at the noise and confusion and heave large sighs of relief when the kids are in bed. When they grow older they worry, as I have said, about late hours, choice of friends, etc. But when the same children have left home for those of their own, then, how lonely are father and mother—always referring to the days when the "family was all home." Queer these parents and children relations!

Stylewise Youngsters Will Go for This Simple Style.

By MARIAN MARTIN

Here's a smart new frock with a simulated boledo that is very popular with style-wise little girls. And it's ever so easy to make this style from Pattern 9520. Make the whole dress in one color or get the effect of a bolero by making the sleeves and side panels in a gay plaid as shown in the small view. If you use dressy fabric, like wash silk or lawn, trim the bodice with tiny pearl buttons, but if you want it for play and every day, you'll find the slide fastener closing both smart and convenient. Every detail of this dress from the demure round collar to the inverted pleat in the skirt is unquestionably smart and up-to-date and really fun to make. Complete Marian Martin Diagrammed Sew Chart is included.

Pattern 9520 may be ordered only in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6 requires 2⅝ yards 36 inch.

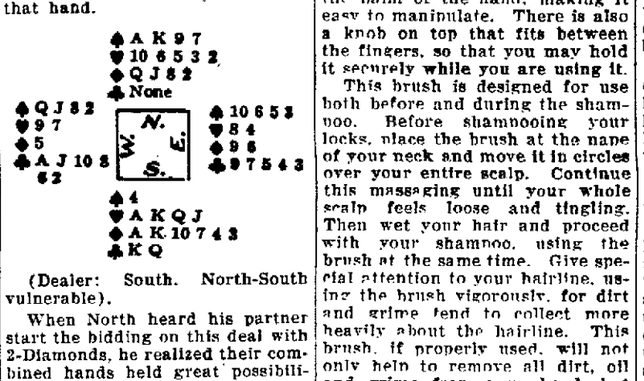
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T BE IN A HURRY

Panic seems to attack some players if in a careless moment they happen to make an insufficient bid. They try to correct it almost at once, without giving the matter thought. Sometimes they pay dearly for their haste. There are so many ways that the bid may be corrected—with any sufficient bid up to and including 7-No Trumps—that the most advisable one should be chosen. The law should be borne in mind. If the call is corrected with the lowest sufficient number of the same declaration, the partner must pass on his next turn. If it is corrected in any other way the partner cannot re-enter the auction at all on that hand.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable).

When North heard his partner start the bidding on this deal with 2-Diamonds, he realized their combined hands held great possibilities, with his splendid fit with his partner in diamonds, his blank club suit and high spades, indicating that South no doubt held the top hearts. This was further borne out by the fact that West overcalled the 2-Diamonds bid with 3-Clubs.

North, wishing to show his blank club suit, inadvertently called 3-Clubs, and when the error was called to his attention, without stopping to consider the results, he quickly bid 4-Clubs. Needless to say, his opponents were happy to pass that bid, and the result was the contract was set three tricks, whereas 7-Diamonds, 7-Hearts or 6-No Trumps could have been made.

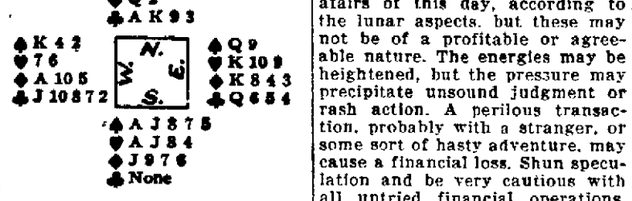
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

With the heart 7 led against South's 4-Hearts contract, how should he plan to make it?

Careless Shampooing Ruins Hair

By GLADYS GLAD

(America's Most Famous Beauty)

THERE IS a famous French detective, I am told, who considers a person's hair as much a matter of individuality as fingerprints. He has a system by which criminals can be identified solely by means of their hair. And he insists that no two heads of hair are exactly alike.

In my opinion, however, there is one respect in which all heads of hair are alike. That is in their reaction to improper shampooing. And you'd be surprised at the number of folk whose shampoos are careless and haphazard affairs!

However, what seems to puzzle folk the most is the frequency with which the hair should be shampooed. That, of course, is a debatable topic. Some hair specialists advocate very frequent shampoos. Others claim that shampooing the hair too often will prove detrimental rather than beneficial. But personally, I have always found that the best criterion for the average woman is to shampoo her hair whenever it seems dirty.

Diet Spoils Hair Beauty.

A dirty scalp is detrimental to hair health and loveliness. Dust, dirt and the excretions of the perspiratory glands all accumulate on the scalp. If these accumulations are not removed, they grow rancid, and their poisonous acids tend to destroy the health of the scalp and hair.

The problem of how often hair should be shampooed is an individual one. As a rule, a normal scalp needs shampooing only every ten days or so. The dry scalp, of course, must not be shampooed too often, as its dryness may thus be increased. Once every two or three weeks should be sufficient for extremely dry hair. Oily hair, however, can stand a good number of shampoos, and even a weekly cleansing is usually not too much for it.

An aid for promoting hair health and beauty is a massage and shampoo brush now on the market. This brush is about three inches in diameter, with a slightly domed back that fits into the palm of the hand, making it easy to manipulate. There is also a knob on top that fits between the fingers, so that you may hold it securely while you are using it.

This brush is designed for use both before and during the shampoo. Before shampooing your locks, place the brush at the nape of your neck and move it in circles over your entire scalp. Continue this massaging until your whole scalp feels loose and tingling. Then wet your hair and proceed with your shampoo, using the brush at the same time. Give special attention to your hairline, using the brush vigorously, for dirt and grime tend to collect more heavily about the hairline. This brush, if properly used, will not only help to remove all dirt, oil and grime from your head, but will also stimulate the circulation in your scalp. And thus it will help to make your tresses lovelier.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Superfluous Hair.

Blanche: The superfluous hair bleach to which you refer is composed of two teaspoons of peroxide and half a teaspoon of ordinary household ammonia.

Arms.

Jane: Warm the coco butter, and massage it well into the arms. This will help to nourish their tissues, and round out their contours.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, March 3.

MUCH ACTIVITY marks the afairs of this day, according to the lunar aspects, but these may not be of a profitable or agreeable nature. The energies may be heightened, but the pressure may precipitate unsound judgment or rash action. A perilous transaction, probably with a stranger, or some sort of hasty adventure, may cause a financial loss. Shun speculation and be very cautious with all untried financial operations. Avoid making loans.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very lively year, with a stimulated energy and spirit of initiative for new and important ventures. These, however, have so much of the doubtful and speculative element that it would be well to defer major operations. Be wary with strangers, make no loans, take few chances.

A child born on this day may be energetic, courageous, fond of taking chances and trying speculative schemes to its detriment, as its zeal may sweep away its good judgment. It may be proud, extravagant and indulgent.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

FROM BENEATH lowered eyelashes, I watched the hotel manager closely as I put my query as to the reason for Philip Veritzen's direction that a "carpenter see to it." But either he had nothing to conceal, or he was wary enough to guess my maneuver and watch it by apparently yielding to the inevitable, as if it were his expected procedure. At any rate, his reply was prompt.

"There is no connection between the small one-room-and-bath suite next door and this one," he said. "But one can be made with very little trouble by cutting a door in the other bathroom, and another in the back of an unused closet here." He waved a hand toward the only door in our suite which had not been opened by the housekeeper.

"Mr. Veritzen thought, of course, that you would wish to have direct access to Miss Whitlock's apartment, and therefore he asked me if it were possible to have communication made. I told him that it was entirely practicable, and he has directed that it be done."

"How very thoughtful of him!" I murmured, with what I deemed the proper appreciative accents. "But, as Miss Whitlock may be away occasionally, may I ask that the bolts and chains which I asked for the outer doors, also be put upon the closet door of this suite and the bathroom door belonging to Miss Whitlock's apartment?"

Mr. Milner's professional imperturbability stood him in good stead at this request, which I knew he might well deem extraordinary.

Madge Is Satisfied.

"That can be done," he said nodding. "I will instruct the carpenter accordingly."

"Thank you so much," I murmured demurely, "especially for giving us so much of your time. I am sure we have everything now we wish."

"Then I will bid you good afternoon," he said formally, moving toward the door, where he stopped and added as if as an afterthought:

"I do not know that I shall be able to get the carpenter to do that work tonight. Would tomorrow do?"

"Of course," I said promptly, and with a glance at the twin beds which occupied one bedroom, added carelessly:

"Do not bother to have Miss Whitlock's room prepared until tomorrow. She will sleep in here until you have all alterations completed and the bolts and chains in place."

His eyebrows lifted ever so slightly.

"I hope you do not fear being murdered in your beds," he said, and knew that he regretted the banal quip as soon as he had uttered it.

Wait for Dinner.

"Such things have happened in New York City before this," I said, willing that he should think me a terrified neurotic rather than have him guess the real, if vague, fears which were obsessing me.

"We will have everything completed to your satisfaction tomorrow afternoon," he promised hastily. "And do not hesitate to call upon me at any time for anything you wish. Shall I send you up a dinner menu?"

"Please!" I said. "But I cannot give my order yet. My husband is planning something special for our dinner, I believe."

"We can furnish him anything he wishes, if he will only give us a little time," he assured us. "Good afternoon!"

Mary waited until she heard the click of the elevator door outside signaling his descent before breaking into excited speech.

"Oh! boy!" she exclaimed. "Didn't you take the starch out—"

"Hush!" Miss Whitlock said peremptorily as she moved to the door on swift, noiseless feet and jerked it open.

"Oh!" she said as if startled. "I thought you had gone."

Bride-to-Be Asks About Wedding

By EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it an unbreakable rule that all the members of a bridesmaid's family be sent invitations to the wedding and reception? One of the girls in my wedding was my dearest friend all through college days but I know the rest of her family only slightly. I grew up with the other girls who are taking part in the wedding and naturally am very near to every one in their families as well. We really have so many names on the wedding lists now that it is diffcult to know how we are going to provide for every one should the percentage of acceptances be high.

Answer: If you are having a reception of any size, then it will be necessary to include the family of each bridesmaid. The only time when the parents and grown brothers and sisters of a bridesmaid can be left out is when the reception is limited to immediate family and the young friends of the bride and bridegroom only. According to your letter, the parents and families of all the other bridesmaids are to be present. Under these circumstances it certainly would not be possible to single out the parents and family of one bridesmaid and not invite them.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Post: Can you give us any good reason why my daughter should include her father in any way in her wedding, when he has not lived with us for many years and has not contributed one cent to the support of the children. However, he has not remarried and has on occasion arranged to meet the children. My daughter, the bride, feels that he ought still to be given his privileges as her father, while I feel that he has shirked his responsibilities and so is not deserving of any privileges, and that recognizing him on this occasion is unfair to me.

Answer: This is one of those questions which requires a great deal more information than your letter gives me.

I can only answer in a general way, that as your daughter feels that her father ought to be recognized, this seems to me a fairly accurate measure to go by. His presence at the wedding has no bearing whatever upon his relationship to you, unless he, after giving his daughter away, takes his place beside you in the church. Even if he had been divorced, even if he were some one whom you could not bear, your daughter is still his child and her feeling about him is the one and only gauge worth following. The fact that he comes into the church, gives her away, takes his place somewhere else in the church and not next to you, simply shows the bride's loyalty to her father as her father. It is not necessary that he be asked to the reception at your house. It does not seem to be that his appearance in church casts any aspersion upon you.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Post: My mother and father are divorced and I live with mother. Both my parents are married again. Mother is giving me my wedding, and father the reception at the country club. Under these circumstances, what kind of invitation should be sent? I mean, will it be proper to enclose both invitations in the same envelope?

Answer: In this rather unusual case, the invitations should be sent out separately and not in the same envelopes, nor even addressed in the same handwriting if this can be avoided. Your mother should send out the church invitations and your father's to the reception should go out separately.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Post: Recently you suggested to a mother, who wrote asking what she should write in a letter to the mother of a girl her son wanted to bring home from college, that properly she should write the girl instead and second her son's invitation. What is customary when a girl, on the other hand, wants to bring a young man home to visit?

Answer: When a man is invited by a girl, her invitation is sufficient. It need never be seconded by any one else. It is only when a girl is invited to a boy's house that an invitation should be sent either by his mother or by whoever is the hostess.

MANSFIELDERS AMONG NINE ON LOST AIRLINER

Tracy and Mary Lou Dirlam Passengers Aboard Plane Missing on Coast.

of TWA en route to Burbank, Calif., from Boulder City, Nev., International News Service dispatches said

Torrential rainfalls whipped the San Joaquin Valley, while in the higher regions of the Tenachapis, where it was feared the plane may have crashed, snow was reported falling.

At 9.30 a. m. (EST), 12 hours after the plane left San Francisco and slightly less than nine hours after it was last heard from, airport officials advised that no trace of it had been found

Route Changed.

The route of the huge two-motored Douglas plane had been changed just before the take-off because of adverse weather condition, officials said Instead of flying straight east, the big plane headed toward Los Angeles there to change to the main line and continue eastward

The two Mansfield students who were home during the Christmas holidays, were notified of their father's illness early yesterday and immediately left their studies to take the afternoon plane for Ohio.

When the plane left Mills field at San Francisco, the clouds were between 6,000 and 7,000 feet high, an ample ceiling for safe flying, a United Press dispatch to the News-Journal said It crossed the long flat San Joaquin Valley and was approaching the mountains when Pilot Graves decided to turn back He radioed "We are turning back," but did not say why

At 8.33 (11 33 E S T) he messaged the Los Angeles terminal: "We are returning to Fresno." Seventeen minutes later he radioed "Proceeding to Fresno with a 10,000 foot ceiling." Fresno then was about 275 miles north. Ahead of him, and apparently only a few miles north was Bakersfield The air terminal dispatcher at Los Angeles ordered him to land at Bakersfield if weather conditions made it advisable.

The plane was still clear of the mountains and was flying over the open valley, although Graves apparently was blinded by two cloud banks, one before him and one below when his last message was received at 12:15 (E. S. T.), United Press added.

The final message was. "We are north of Bakersfield at 10,000 feet No decision made at present. We will stay on right side of airway and will advise you as we look over the lower cloud conditions'

The later message that he promised never came. For hours the air terminal radio crackled with frantic calls to the missing plane There was no answer.

Clouds and darkness made search before dawn impossible

A woman whose name was not learned, telephoned the air terminal from Big Creek, about 30 miles from Fresno in the mountainous country that she had seen the lights of the plane flying low at 12 20 a m (EST) today.

Mrs. C. G. Landry, wife of an employe at the Edison Power company at Huntington lake, reported that she saw the plane flying down the San Joaquin river at an altitude of 500 feet at 12 30. Because of this report the TWA company sent its Fresno manager and others to this point, to start a searching party by auto

Officials said that searching for the plane would be difficult because eight feet of snow covers the rock, brush and trails

Ample Gas Supply.

When the plane left San Francisco yesterday it carried 500 gallons of gas, a supply that would have lasted six and a half hours Officials said this was the first accident to mar the TWA record on the Pacific coast since 1928.

Air traffic into and out of Los Angeles was resumed only yesterday after being held up nearly 48 hours because of stormy weather. A light rain was falling last evening when the plane took off from San Francisco the airport reported, but visibility was considered good.

The plane had accommodations for 14 passengers Besides the two Mansfield people, other passengers were Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Walts, San Francisco, flying to Chicago, V. Krause, San Francisco, bound for Kansas City, and H. M. Salisbury, TWA pilot flying as a passenger to Kansas City after visiting his mother at Walnut Grove, Cal

The missing members of the crew are Pilot Graves, Officer C. W Wallace, and Stewardess Martha Mae Wilson, daughter of Mrs G F Painter of Bridgeport, O.

Graves, chief pilot, lived in Palo Alto, Cal., and had been with the airline since 1930 and on the San Francisco-Winslow run since September, 1937.

SAN FRANCISCO — (AP)—A strange message saying "We are all safe, but very uncomfortable," which was heard by an Oakland family when a commercial radio program "faded" today, caused an investigation by a department of commerce inspector on the chance it came from the missing TWA plane.

Alvin Smith, Oakland inspector for the department said, said he did not believe the message was from the missing plane.

State Department Authorizes City and County Boards to Borrow $95,200.

Mansfield schools still owe $23,000, or half of the December allocation provided by the Foundation law.

Dr John H. Bristor, clerk of the board of education, said it would be necessary for the board to borrow immediately against the state authorization. A tax advance of $67,000 from the county last week relieved the pressure temporarily.

Allocations to other counties today included:

Cities and exempted villages in this area received the following amounts:

Ashland, $23,513; Bucyrus, $12,736; Galion, $13,939; Mt. Vernon, $23,110, Crestline, $7,050 and Willard, $10,001.

NEW YORK—(AP)—A decision by William Randolph Hearst to disperse about $15,000,000 worth of his fabulous art collection—about two-thirds of it—was announced today by associates.

The 74-year-old publisher, it was stated, plans to break up the vast collection by sale and gift in order to cut down inheritance taxes his heirs must pay when he dies.
